Hard on Stock Gamblers
Another Prodigy Age 14
Gold Goes to France
Providence in China

By Arthur Brisbane

STOCK GAMBLING in dull, uncertain times is most annoying to gamblers. They never can be quite sure.

Wall Street heard of the drought, and wise bulls said, "That will kill grain crops, and with less wheat and corn, prices will go up. The low price of wheat has held stocks down. Let us buy stocks and they will go up with wheat."

They bought stocks and they did NOT go up, when wheat and corn went up.

The bears said: "This is our opportunity. We sympathize with the suffering public, especially the farmer. When drought kills crops, that will injure all the people, and stocks will go down. This is the time to sell them." They sold them and stocks did NOT go down enough to make it worth while.

Stock gambling is very wearing, except for bull times, and for bears in panics. Then it is "like taking candy from a sick child."

A boy, 14 years old, enters Harvard College this fall. His father is a German chemist, his mother, an American graduate of Radcliffe. Youthful prodigies of yesteryear are rarely conspicuous 20 years later.

Perhaps too much education is the trouble. Four or five years at Harvard College may be the best possible thing for a promising boy of 14.

On the other hand, three years in the Northwest woods, without a book, might be better than five college years. "Es bildet ein talent sich in der stille." "Talent is built in solitude." Does not mean Harvard.

Those that sympathized with France, wondering how she would recuperate from fearful war losses, will rejoice to hear that the principal worry in France now is what to do with the gold pouring in.

French newspapers call it "glut of gold" and say something must be done about it.

Last week the French gold supply increased thirty millions, bringing the total gold reserve in the Bank of France to one billion eight hundred and forty millions dollars.

Day before yesterday 246 barrels of gold arrived in Paris from New York, worth $13,000,000.

The French are an intelligent, efficient people, in war and peace. Our bankers might learn something by visiting them.

Gold puzzles even wise gentlemen that manage finance in the United States.

After the business slump in 1920, the United States drew from Europe and other sources $664,000,000 in gold, in what was called a "deflation crash."

Now in another "deflation crash" we send $67,000,000 in gold to other countries in five weeks.

We don't know why we gathered in the $644,000,000 in 1920 or why we have lost the $67,000,000 in the last five weeks.

The mysterious ways of Providence are recalled as you reflect on the overwhelming population of Asia, China especially, and then on the Chinese war.

Of 20,000 Hunnese troops in one China fighting unit, "more than half are boys 14 to 16 years old, only 25 per cent have rifles, the others carrying spears and swords for beheading prisoners."

When war, brigandage and famine bring to the battlefields boys of 14 armed with beheading swords, you know that Providence, or something, is attending temporarily to the Asiatic population problem.

Importation of King Carol, persuaded to trade a charming lady for a Balkan throne, has not helped the condition of unfortunate Jews in Rumania.

Constant anti-Semitic outbreaks are reported, the latest telling of Rumanian "students" boarding trains and beating Jewish passengers. The outrages are stimulated by distribution of printed matter, urging attacks on Jews as responsible for all misfortune, from too much rain to drought.

Various Rumanian organizations are formed for the purpose of Jew-baiting. One is called "The Iron Guard," another "The Archangel Michael Student Organization." Its nameseake would not be proud of it.

The League of Nations tries to have the anti-Semitic organizations suppressed without success.

Questioned About Death Plunge of Girl

ROBERT McCLEARN EUGENE DES JARDINS

TWO MEN AND A GIRL were questioned by Back Bay police regarding the death of Ruth Ryan, 26, of Somerville, who plunged from a fifth story window of an Astor st. apartment to her death when an officer arrived to investigate complaints of neighbors disturbed by the noise. The girl fell from a window in Des Jardins' room. McLearn, another tenant and Miss Couly, a South Boston girl, was asked to tell what they knew of the party. (Staff photo.)

PLUNGES OUT OF WINDOW IN FIFTH STORY

Man in Whose Room She Was and Two Others Found in Apartment House Quizzed

Death climaxed a gay party in an Astor st. apartment early today when Ruth Ryan, 26, of Woods ave., Somerville, jumped or fell from a fifth floor window, according to the police, dying shortly afterward at City hospital.

Patrolman John J. Dowd of station 16, Back Bay, was called to the apartment house three times during the night by neighbors, who complained of the noise.

On his first two trips he found all quiet, and took no action, but the third time he entered an apartment and found the girl there as well as Eugene Des Jardins, who is said to be this regular occupant of the suite.

He arrested Des Jardins and took him downstairs. While he was telephoning for the patrol wagon, one of the tenants rushed up and told him somebody had jumped from a window. The unconscious form of the girl was found in an alleyway in the rear of the building.

She may have thought she was stepping out on to a fire escape, which was just outside the next window, around a corner of the building, in the opinion of the investigators.

Des Jardins, together with Robert McClearn, another tenant, and a South Boston girl named Arline Conley were questioned at station 16 by Inspector James A. Dennessey of the headquarters homicide squad and Special Officer Joseph Condon. All were allowed to go.

They knew the girl, they said, only as "Dot," but a card was found in her pocket bearing the name of Aaron Beal, a Tremont st. jeweler. Beal went to the Southern mortuary and identified her, saying she had worked for him for several years and had been a faithful, trustworthy employe.

Volunteers Join Hunt for Aged Stow Couple

Stow, Aug. 9—More than 100 volunteers today aided two details of state troopers in continued search for the bodies of farmer William Stefanovicz and his wife, believed victims of a double murder.

The stagnant, slime-covered waters of Cedar swamp pool and the isolated farmstead from which the aged couple vanished on May 21 were the scenes of the search.

Meanwhile, with new discoveries strengthening the theory of murder as the solution of their sinister disappearance, state police intensified the hunt for their farmhand, Joseph Stefanosky, sought for questioning since Wednesday when authorities first learned the Stefanovicz had dropped from sight.

Police of Hudson, Lynn, Newburyport, Brockton and Nashua and Portsmouth, N. H., were seeking him while state detectives sought to trace a series of long distance telephone calls he made shortly before he, too, left the farm, two weeks ago.

HORSE UNDER GUARD

The ancient white farmhouse on the Old Stow road remained locked with state troopers on guard since Wednesday night, denying admittance to everyone, and the report spread among the searchers that State Detectives Joseph Sherlock and Joseph O'Neill had made important discoveries which, for the time being, they were keeping secret.

It was known police had established that about 10 days ago a "wild party" attended by a girl about 20, several men and considerable liquor was held at the farm.

The missing farmhand is said not to have been present and it was doubted whether the party had any relevancy to the disappearance of the farmer and his wife.

The searchers for bodies divided into several groups, one led by the troopers, turning over a great heap of refuse found under the barn. Other groups moved through the woods and brushland on the 165-acre farm itself while many of the more daring ventured into Cedar swamp to poke about in the pool made locally famous in murder legend 70 years ago.

STOCKS RALLY; LOW AT CLOSE

New York, Aug. 9—Prices closed generally lower in trading today on the New York Stock Exchange. It was an erratic and active session.

Losses in the first hour among active issues ran from $1 to $6 a share, but the second hour saw a rally which more than cancelled most of the losses. Renewed selling appeared, which cancelled most of the gains.

American Telephone, up over $3 a share, was a strong feature. U. S. Steel was heavy, despite its excellent unfilled tonnage statement, which appeared after the close of the market.

Of the most active stocks, about half showed moderate gains, while the rest recorded moderate losses.

Much of the recovery in prices recorded at intervals today were attributed to hurried short covering. J. I. Case, after dropping $6, regained and sold more than $1 above yesterday's final price, then reacted. American Telephone was firm, rising more than $3. Losses of about $2 in Johns Manville and Westinghouse Electric were converted into gains of similar extent before profit-taking appeared which cut the gains to fractions at the close.

Mayor Curley

It is universally accepted that four of the great evils afflicting mankind from the beginning of time to be ignorance, poverty, disease and crime. Thought ful men have sought a remedy with varying degrees of success.

In Boston progress has been made but much remains still unaccomplished. The city of Boston employs directly about 18,000 persons and indirectly, in the form of contract labor during six months of the year, about 6000 additional men and women. It was the custom for more than 100 years of the city's corporate existence to remove public employes because of their personal activities in an election and, not infrequently, women and men who had given the best years of their lives to the service of the municipality found the poorhouse staring them in the face after an election at which some individual other than the one whom they supported had been successful. With a view to ending this system, in 1905 I drafted a so-called old age pension retirement bill. Under the provision of this bill the municipality contributes the equivalent of 4 per cent of the wages of the worker annually to a retirement fund and a like percentage is with-

"TIGER" HALE, FIRST OWNER, VANISHED

Solution of Crime Hidden in Dark Pool of Cedar Swamp

of former Representative and Mrs. George W. W. Edson, the Stefanovics' nearest neighbors. Mrs. Edson, who was her closest friend, declared that Mrs. Stefanovics was a cultured woman, who had two brothers professors at Warsaw University.

MYSTERY OF 1860.

The local legend built up around Cedar swamp pool is concerned with the disappearance of "Tiger" Hale, former owner of the Stefanovics farm, in 1860.

He is said to have been robbed of $4000 and his body disposed of in the swamp pool. In fact, nothing was ever learned of his whereabouts after he dropped from sight.

The utmost caution was taken by searchers today in examining the pool which is reported to have an unsounded bottom of quicksand.

Stunted cedars cover many acres of swampy lowlands in the approaches to the pool, close-grown, dead gnarled limbs brushing twisted limbs, giving the place a darkened and forbidding appearance which has added to its fame in legend. Its reputation for quicksand caused today's searchers to equip themselves with ropes and planks.

Most significant of the new evidence strengthening the double murder theory was the discovery that Stefanovics and his wife, on the day before they dropped from sight, paid $200 interest on a $6000 mortgage on the farm to the Concord Savings Bank.

This police claim, is proof conclusive that the couple had no intention of abandoning the farm.

PHONE CALLS CHECKED

The telephone calls being checked were made from the Edson home and the Edsons have lost the bill on which they were listed. Stefanovky paid cash for them at the time he made them. The work of tracing them was underway today at the Marlboro telephone office.

In their search for the missing farmhand, authorities are handicapped by a lack of knowledge of his life and associates before he appeared here two years ago.

His conflicting stories regarding his employers, who he said, at various times to different people, were in Chicago and in Everett, may only have been characteristic of his nature, said to be taciturn and secretive, police point out.

Too, he had been threatened with arrest by Louis Gould, a Clinton cattle dealer, who claimed misrepresentation of a cow Stefanosky sold him from the Stefanovics herd. Gould sought to stop payment on his check when he discovered the cow was a poor milker, but found the farmhand had cashed the check.

VISITED FARMHOUSE

Joseph Sebelka, of School st., Hudson, nephew of Charles Chaves, one of the hands hired by Stefanosky after the aged couple vanished, said today that he was at the farmhouse a little more than a week ago and that the mattress as well as the bed had disappeared from the room in which the Stefanovics slept.

It is in this room that bloodstains are said to have been found on floor and walls by the detectives.

Whether an analysis has been made of the stains was not made known, but it is believed a state chemist visited the farm. The axe, fitted with a new handle and found in the barn yesterday, is said to have been turned over to him. This is a suspected murder weapon.

The farmhand's story to neighbors before he slipped away, that the old couple "had gone to Chicago to die" was quickly spiked in that city yesterday when a search of hospitals failed to reveal them.

Another angle of the search led to Nashua, N. H., on a checkup of the man's story that he was going to that city to ball out a sweetheart who had been convicted on liquor charges.

He told other friends this girl was serving sentence from courts at Lynn, Newburyport and Portsmouth, N. H.

Another development that points to murder, or at least an unwilling exodus from the house, was the finding of the couple's clothing in their rooms, including the best suit of the man.

Sergt. Raymond Foley of the Concord State police barracks, who figured so prominently in the solution of the Salisbury Beach murder of Stella Kale, was assigned complete charge of the searching troopers by Detectives O'Neil and Sherlock, in charge of the case.

New Woman Judge Defends the Fairness of Her Sex

By BEET CARYL
International News Correspondent

Southwest Harbor, Me., Aug. 9 (INS)—"Do you think women judges can deal as fairly with women defendants as men judges?"

"Absolutely."

Miss Sarah M. Soffel, Pennsylvania's first woman judge, replied with a finality that left no shadow of doubt.

There is no reason, she explained, why women have not the same judicial attainments as men; have the same point of view in matters of law and justice as have men.

Arriving here for a vacation, Miss Soffel went by boat last evening to Great Cranberry Isle, where she was today.

She has often been there and this year the fisher folk were anxious to extend their congratulations on her appointment to the bench, an honor that had come for the first time to a woman of Pennsylvania.

At the home of Mrs. E. L. Spurling, Miss Soffel found the first official notification of her appointment contained in a message from Gov. John S. Fisher.

"I deeply appreciate the honor of the appointment to a bench which so closely touches the lives of men, women and children of our country," said Miss Soffel.

Her appointment was to the judgeship of the Allegheny county court, which handles a wide range of cases.

"Do you think that in time there will be all women judges in our courts?" she was asked.

Miss Soffel laughed. "No," she said. "It's not as bad as that."

"Are you in sympathy with the view that women will soon rule the universe?"

"Not in our time, or in the time of our children's children," replied the judge. "Please don't think I'm as feminist as that. I wouldn't like to see such a condition of affairs."

Miss Soffel, a Wellesley College graduate, may attend the Wellesley Alumnae Association meeting in Massachusetts in the fall. She is also a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh law school.

The police said Reynolds removed important parts of self-starters on parked cars, replacing them with parts that would not function. Then, they said, he would appear as the car owners had unsuccessfully tried to start their machines and represent himself as a mechanic of ability. Then he'd put the original piece back and the starter would function.

May Collins, Chaplin's Former Fiancee, Weds

Dress of Mrs. Coolidge Added to Collection

Washington, Aug. 9—A rose chiffon evening dress worn at Washington society functions considered the most becoming of the many worn by her at social functions while at the White House has been added by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge to the collection of dresses worn by the wives of the Presidents.

Mrs. Coolidge

The gowns form a part of a permanent exhibit in the National Museum here. The new dress will replace one which gave to the museum in 1924. The older dress was replaced because it was not considered typical of the latter days of the Coolidge administration.

The marble figure of Mrs. Coolidge, used to display the dress, stands in a case with those of Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Harding. Closely are the figures of every President's wife since Martha Washington. Wilson, her gown, Mrs. Coolidge presented her fraternity pin, an opal-set arrow of Pi Beta Phi.

WILLETT FILES HIS PAPERS AS CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR

KIN OF ALLEN AS WELL AS BITTER FOE

Governor's Brother-in-Law Seeks Nomination From Democratic Party

An unexpected figure appeared in the political arena today when George F. Willett of Norwood, brother-in-law of Gov. Frank G. Allen, filed with the Secretary of State, papers for the Democratic nomination for State Senator from the Norfolk and Middlesex district.

Willett, a prominent figure in the $15,000,000 Willett-Sears trial at Dedham, recently made a violent attack on the Governor, who formerly represented the same district in the Senate.

Senator Samuel H. Wragg, the present incumbent, is the unopposed candidate for the Republican nomination for the office.

TIME FOR WITHDRAWALS

With the filing of nomination papers yesterday for former Mayor Andrew J. Peters as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, the lists of both parties are full and an idea of the possible alignment in the primaries can be obtained.

Although the time for filing papers in the various communities closed at 5 p. m. yesterday, the candidates have until 5 o'clock next Tuesday in which to decide whether they will file with the Secretary of State.

After having entered their papers at the secretary's office, they may withdraw at any time until 5 p. m. August 15, so that there is ample time for further developments.

PETERS PAPERS FILED.

The Peters papers were filed in Suffolk, Bristol, Middlesex, Essex, Worcester and Hampden Counties. Whether the former mayor, who is at North Haven, Me., directed the filing could not be learned.

In consequence there is a possibility that he may not choose to run, according to some politicians, although it is understood he would like the nomination.

The first development after injection of Peters' name into the fight was announcement of the withdrawal of John J. Cummings. In a statement issued from his office he said he assumed both John F. Fitzgerald and Joseph B. Ely would also be delighted to step aside in favor of Peters.

Fitzgerald and Ely, the other two of the four candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, insisted they were in the fight to a finish.

In the Democratic senatorial nomination fight the situation was somewhat complicated by the last-minute filing of papers for Eugene Noble Foss, three times Governor of the Commonwealth.

FOUR-CORNERED FIGHT

Like Peters, he has taken no hand in the circulation of nomination papers and has not made up his mind whether or not to be a candidate. The fact that he is a lone dry in the ranks of we: Democrats would seem to militate against his success in case he enters the contest.

The other candidates for the nomination, whose papers were filed with the Boston election department, are Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, and Thomas G. O'Brien and Joseph F. O'Connell of this city.

Daniel H. Coakley also filed nomination papers as an Independent candidate, with no designation given, the only statement being that he is a candidate for the U. S. Senate.

In view of the fact that in the last mayoralty contest he received few votes, his candidacy is not taken seriously by the leaders.

OTHER PAPERS FILED

Other Democratic papers filed were those of Strabo V. Claggett of Newton, John F. Malley of Newton, Charles S. Murphy of Worcester and Mayor Michael C. O'Neil of Everett for Lieutenant-Governor; Joseph Santosuosso, Charles J. O'Brien and Arthur G. Flynn for Secretary of State; John D. Dorsey, Charles F. Hurley and Frederick H. Rourke for Auditor; F. X. Harley, F. J. O'Gorman and Jerome J. Shea for Treasurer, and Henry P. Fielding, H. W. Sullivan and W. R. Scharton for Attorney-General.

In the district attorney fight, Democratic papers were filed for William J. Foley and Joseph J. Mulhern.

On the Republican side former Mayor John J. Davis of Malden filed papers to run against Governor Allen for the nomination for governor.

Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner had no opposition so far as Boston is concerned.

Charles L. Burrill, R. D. Chase, James W. Bean and George B. Willard filed papers for state treasurer.

William M. Butler, W. I. Butler and Stephen S. Draper filed for U. S. Senator.

COOLIDGE-NAVY FUSS FOUND TO HAVE BIG 'IF'

Typographical Error of One Letter May Be Cause of Whole Conflict

Washington, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Navy Department, which not so long ago took Calvin Coolidge's slightest word as law, today was on record with an objection to a pronouncement of the former President.

In a recent syndicated article by Mr. Coolidge dealing with aircraft there occurred the sentence:

"A navy office reports that the best engine is made abroad."

The navy has long prided itself that it has the best airplane engines ever made and two of its high officials, Acting Secretary Jahncke and Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, were quick to say so after reading the Coolidge article.

A typographical error, however, may be responsible for the conflict. If Mr. Coolidge intended to say "officer" instead of "office" there would be little cause for complaint on the part of the navy, for one of its officers, Lieut. T. W. G. Settle, noted balloonist, recently observed in an article that a German engine has the only dirigible power plant so far fully tried and developed. The Coolidge article started with a reference to the flight of the R-100, though it discussed aviation in general.

NAVY YARD PAY TO STAY SAME

Washington, Aug. 9 (AP)—Acting Secretary Jahncke of the navy announced today that three important steps would be undertaken immediately by the Navy Department, in line with President Hoover's program of economy.

He named them as continuation of the present schedule of wages into 1931; cutting down the steaming radius of all navy ships to save between $250,000 and $400,000 of fuel and a preliminary study designed to place the naval station at Key West, Florida, on an inoperative status.

The secretary said the wage board decision would affect about 40,000 employes.

CUP YACHTS END CRUISE TODAY

By TOM HORGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Newport, R. I., Aug. 9 (AP)—The Enterprise, skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, entered the last day of competition in connection with the annual New York Yacht Club cruise today, with the best record of any of the four aspirants for the defense of the America's Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V.

She had three clean-cut victories out of six days' sailing, and four, if the race committee adheres to its own printed instructions.

Vanderbilt's sloop followed Weetamoe to the finish line yesterday by five minutes. But Weetamoe crossed on the wrong side of one of the markers and, technically, the race and a special cup offered by Commodore Vincent Astor should go to Enterprise.

No matter how today's race ends, the Enterprise will return with the best record for the eight-day cruise.

DRY MEN NOT TO HALT AUTOISTS

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP)—The promise that prohibition agents who halt motorists without adequate reason to believe that the law is being violated will be held to strict accountability, is made in a letter, made public today, from Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, to the Automobile Club of Maryland.

He said he hoped to make the dry agents "the best trained group of officers in the world."

Mr. Woodcock's stand was given in reply to a communication growing out of an incident near here July 17, when two officers were said to have fired two shots at a car containing E. G. Duncan, State roads' engineer, and his wife.

SOLVE MYSTERY IN DEATH OF WATCHMAN

Chauncy St. Worker Stepped in Wrong Elevator Shaft, the Police Believe

Under mystifying circumstances, the body of John P. Smith, about 55, of Waverly st., Malden, was found today at the bottom of an elevator well at 99 Chauncy st., where he was the night watchman.

Pending pathological examination of bloodstains found on the seventh floor of the building, Dr. William H. Watters, associate medical examiner, refrained from making a final report, but said that death appeared to have been accidental.

Police Inspectors Harry Pierce of the homicide squad and Stanley Gaw of the fingerprint bureau, after investigating reports of a drinking party and running down clues that seemed to point to foul play, reached the same conclusion as Dr. Watters.

Police said Smith apparently stepped into the open well, thinking the elevator was there. The elevator in which Smith went to the seventh floor, was in the next well.

Smith had more than $300 in his pockets when the body was found. This was money with which he was to have paid off the charwomen later in the morning.

The discovery was made at 3:55 a. m. by Roland M. Woods of 135 Fairfield st., Dedham, an assistant of Smith's. The latter was last seen alive at midnight by Jack Di Liscio, a construction foreman on street work outside the building.

A peculiar aspect of the death was the story told by Patrolmen Maurice Sheehy and Michael Denehy of the flying squadron, who rushed to the building soon after midnight on an anonymous tip that a fight was going on there. They searched, but failed to find anything wrong, they reported.

Smith was between 50 and 60 years old and a native of Edinburgh, Scotland. In his room was found a memorandum asking that Mrs. A. McGill, Florence st., Shrewsbury, be notified in case of accident. He has a sister, Miss Janet Smith, living in Toronto.

WILL AID AGED COUPLE IN NEED

Groveland, Aug. 9—Atty. Russell C. Cammett, chairman of the board of public welfare, after an interview with Police Chief George L. Nelson, was to confer today with his associates in the department to see what steps would be taken to aid Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Perry, aged couple residing in Center st., South Groveland, both related to great American statesmen of more than 75 years ago.

Mr. Perry, 78, is said to be a grand-nephew of Daniel Webster, while his wife, 86, and totally blind, is a niece of former President Franklin Pierce, New Hampshire's only citizen to become the nation's chief executive.

The aged couple moved from Atkinson, N. H., to the small home they occupy five years ago. They receive $8 a month from an association that aids the blind and a relative in Lynn is said to make frequent small remittances to them.

When neighbors called the attention of Police Chief Nelson to the almost poverty-stricken condition of the aged couple he decided to submit the case to the public welfare board. This board consists of Chairman Cammett, John S. Deegan and Samuel H. Nelson.

WIDE HUNT FOR BOY FUGITIVES

Massachusetts police were today searching for six boys who escaped from the New Hampshire state industrial school at Manchester.

The fugitives last night broke the bars of a locker room window in which they were confined and scattered into the woods.

Two officers of the institution witnessed the break for liberty, but failed to give chase for fear of starting a general riot among other inmates.

The boys who fled are regarded by officials as "dangerous," all having previously escaped or been returned for violation of their parole. Their descriptions were broadcast throughout New Hampshire, Maine and Massachusetts.

Governor Tobey of New Hampshire recently created a sensation by announcing that girl inmates of the institution had been tortured while being punished. He stated that by his order the practices he referred to had been stopped.

IT IS a nice friendly gesture to give at least an inkling of who you are when you wear clothes so fetching as to encourage curiosity. You need not say a word, of course, for discreet monograms will identify you sufficiently to make possible a more formal introduction, should that be necessary.

WHETHER or not you are interested in making new acquaintances, you should consider the monogram vogue. It is a means of identifying yourself as a smart person in this day of chic berets, attractive plain purses, shanting scarfs, smart tailored blouses and jerkins. And matched monograms are a clue to your rare good fashion sense.

AS MANY as three or four of your accessories may flaunt monograms at the same moment, and the monograms should match, of course. Your top-piece, whether a smartly skimpy beret or brimmed panama, may have three initials embroidered on. The pocket of your shirt, blouse or jacket may have the same decoration; and your purse, the identical monogram in metal.

IT IS the monogram that matters, its presence and its distinctiveness. You may wear it as a repeat motif on whatever fashions you wish, just being careful to avoid too much monogram!

PATENT LEATHER promises to return to favor with the colder weather. Black patent leather operas are smart for all hours of the day. Brown patent is scheduled for appearance with the fall browns. The combination of patent leather with suede is another new note.

Daily Antique No. 167

Look at all the drawers in this roomy secretary. We are willing to let you in on a secret. There is a hidden drawer in this bit of antique mahogany. It was brought over from England in 1770 by Capt. John Follett, great-great uncle of the owner, who is Follett Garrish of Kittery Point, Me. This secretary is still in active use and is built in a most substantial manner. Mr. Garrish has many interesting antiques.

THE WAYSIDE, CONCORD

The Wayside or Hillside is best known for its association with Nathaniel Hawthorne. On the Lexington road to Concord, just from Orchard House of the Alcotts, it is picturesquely situated on a steep hillside. The hillside was a favorite haunt of Hawthorne.

The Alcotts lived for a short time at the Wayside, then called the Hillside, which was purchased from a legacy Mrs. Alcott received from her father, Col. Joseph May, of Boston.

Emerson also helped by contributing $500 to his friends, and in 1845, Hillside was purchased.

REMAINED UNTIL 1848

The house was old and imperfect, but Bronson Alcott planted trees, made a terraced garden and beautified the spot. While living at Hillside, Louisa Alcott taught school in the barn, Emerson's children being among her pupils. The Alcotts remained here until 1848, when they removed to Boston.

After six years absence, Hawthorne returned to Concord and took up his abode at the Wayside, his last American home. He lived at this home from 1852-53 and 1860-64. He was absent in England as American consul and a resident on the Continent for seven years.

When he returned from England he moved the barn to the other side of the house and connected it with that side, built two fair-sized rooms, adding a story on the other wing, and surmounting all by a tower which he used for a study and retreat. Here Septimius Felton was written.

Margaret Sidney, writer of the "Five Little Peppers" series and other stories, also owned the Wayside. She was Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, wife of the publisher. She kept the three houses, Orchard House Grapevine Cottage and Wayside, as memorials to their former owners.

Concord has much of interest and is worth a day spent in its environs. It is easily reached on Route No. 2 from Boston.

MAYOR CURLEY EXPLAINS HOW CITY PROVIDES FOR ITS WORKERS

SAYS INDUSTRIES SHOULD ADOPT SAME SYSTEM

held from the wages paid the worker. This particular measure has resulted in a contented public service in Boston, a public service system under which the worker is permitted political freedom without fear of reprisal and under which, if he elects, at 65 years of age he may be retired with the equivalent of one-half of the salary received by him or her during their service with the municipality, and at the age of 70 is compulsorily retired.

OVER 1500 RETIRED

During the period this act has been upon the statute books more than 1500 persons have been permitted to retire and in the sunset of their existence enjoy a well deserved leisure, stripped of the prospect that confronts most workers when unable longer to toil, namely, the poorhouse and the stigma of pauperism.

Similar provisions for the protection of the worker and for the contentment and happiness of the public might well be put in operation by every employer in America. The burden entailed would not be unduly great and the happiness which would result would more than offset the financial loss resulting from the introduction of such a system. The law affecting city employes is today applicable to more than 18,000 workers who in return for this generous measure of legislation may be relied upon for a loyal and devoted labor.

Prior to the adoption of this system under the serf wage system of $2.00 per day for the hardest worked employes of the city, namely, laborers, loan agencies flourished and the rate obtained was not infrequently a one hundred per cent annually. Specific cases might be cited where an increase in family of those days made necessary a visit to a loan agent, or what might be termed a "loan shark," and the sum borrowed to pay doctors and nurses; anticipation of the arrival of a baby not infrequently resulted in the borrower continuing in the hands of "sharks," so called, for over six months to a year.

LOAN SHARK EVIL

At that time I instructed the city treasurer to refuse to recognize any of the levies made upon salary other than in the dozen cases referred to and to pay the wages of the women and men who had been earning the money rather than turning it over as had been the custom to the "loan sharks" each week. The corporation counsel for the city of Boston was instructed to act as attorney without charge for every individual victim of the "loan shark" system, the result being that none of the cases were brought to court and the sum of $30,000 of "loan shark" cases was saved to city employes.

Realizing that every individual at some time or other has occasion to borrow money, I established the City of Boston Credit Union. The credit union has been in operation for about 25 years and is the means by which the individual without endorsers at the rate of 6 per cent per year and with the exception of losses sustained during the police strike the average annual loss has been than one-quarter of 1 per cent, while the turnover in this period of time has been in excess of $5,000,000.

HIGH CITY WAGES

I have always believed that the true source of prosperity in America provides for a larger distribution of the wealth created by the men and women of America and have constantly increased, wherever conditions permitted, the wages of persons in the city service. I stated at the outset that the four great evils afflicting mankind were ignorance, poverty, disease and crime, but it was found extremely difficult to make a real showing in the work of minimizing disease until the benefaction made possible by Georg. Robert White in his will was made available. Through this benefaction, for the first time, it has been possible to establish in the congested centers of the city, so-called, cleaning houses for the prevention of sickness, and where the various agencies and individuals interested in the public well-being and in social welfare work assemble bi-weekly for the study and discussion of ways and means for the safeguarding of the health of the people of the city. organizations are relieved from the payment of heavy overhead expenses and act under the guidance of competent medical anc social welfare authorities and the work is proving a genuine blessing to all.

At the North End Health Unit in the first years of its operation 84,000 men, women and children applied for examination, advice and treatment without cost of any kind. To these great health agencies, sometimes "ermer" cases in deserta of disease and depression come the expectant mothers and individuals who have long suffered and who in the past have lacked either the courage or money, or both for medical and surgical advics and treatment. In the opinion of leading medical authorities, who have investigated and studied the workings of these units, when the entire system of nine units are operating, one in every three babies who now die at childbirth and one in every five mothers will be saved. The coming of the baby boy or girl into the world is thereby in a large measure robbed of the terrors of paynecal and financial difficulties.

HOSPITAL PROGRAM

The hospital program in which the requirements of the next half century have been anticipated is today rapidly approaching completion. When completed it will represent an expenditure of $7,000,000 and will result in Boston attaining first rank in the care of its citizenship amongst the cities of the world. Naturally Boston is proud of its accomplishment in the matter of combating poverty and disease. Nevertheless there is ever present a realization that while we may have done more than any other American city that we have made but a feeble beginning.

In the matter of combatting ignorance we are committed to a program of self-sacrifice, both for teaching staff and school buildings that requires an expenditure well in excess of the city receives for taxation and maintenance. The expenditures for the conduct of school activities has increased more than 300 per cent in a period of 15 years and this increase has been due not to increase in population but rather is it a consequence of the increased wage following the World War. Approximately 15 per cent of the boys and girls graduating from grammar school attended high school and less than six per cent attended college prior to the World War. Today, as a result of the larger distribution of the created wealth of America in the form of increased wages, nearly 70 per cent of the grammar school graduates are found seeking admission to high school and about 25 per cent enrolling in the various colleges. If the public as a whole could visualize the importance, intensity and value of maintaining the wage level, in operation in America during 1927-1928, the people would not consider a reduction of one per cent or two per cent in their annual dividends from securities too great a price to pay for the happiness, contentment and peace of their fellow Americans.

CRIME SITUATION

Crime like disease is largely an economic proposition and that Boston has been more free of crime than other large American cities, despite the fact that there has been greater dependency maintained despite this demoralization and the low morals of the police department. The primary cause of the crime wave in America may be traced directly to industrial depression. The healthy, well-intentioned law-abiding head of the household, unable to secure the employment necessary for the maintenance of his little brood in the richest country the world, and driven by some agency in the hour of need, reverts to lec talionis.

That the individual may be safeguarded from impulses destructive alike to himself and the community, a liberal policy has been established in the Boston public welfare department under which today fully 30,000 persons are aided until such time as conditions change for the better. It is futile to stand idly by and wait for conditions to better themselves. Industrial depression in America and in the world is in no sense an innovation. That eminent English authority, Lloyd George, has stated that industrial depression occurs in England approximately every 10 years and in America the rule has been about once in every seven years and this being the case it becomes the duty of all persons interested in the maintenance of the government to devote some time and thought to the solution of the problem.

AIDING VETERANS

Unfortunately we rarely move in America except on the spur of necessity and the toil of our neglect as a consequence has always been extremely and unnecessarily great. In 1922 depression was prevalent in America. The veterans who had responded to the call of country for a service of from one to two years at the munificent salary of $1 a day, upon returning to America, found that the positions formerly held by them were pre-empted by less patriotic Americans, and the impression prevalent in the land that the service man would not work. Aid furnished service men unable to secure work was paid at the rate of one million five hundred thousand dollars per year. This expenditure did not represent the real serious side of the proposition that was represented in the sapping of the manhood, character and independence of the service man who was rapidly losing the three important essentials of life and becoming a spineless mendicant. With a view to changing that condition, I sought authority from the Legislature to construct an extension of the Boston Rapid Transit system upon a day labor basis, with prefer nce being given to service men.

CONTRACTORS OPPOSE

Many contractors and their beneficiaries fought against the passage of the bill. It represented a most radical departure from established procedure in the matter of important public work which heretofore had always been constructed upon a contract basis and usually under the padrone system. The authority was granted, and the work was started and completed by the service men who had fought in the war and whom most people believed had forgotten low to work. The Rapid Transit System was completed in record time and at a lower cost to the municipality than if performed under a contract system. Nearly 3000 men were required to complete the work. Every service man physically able to perform any character of labor had his name removed from the soldiers' relief payroll, with the result that from an annual average of a million and half dollars the rolls were reduced to less than one-half million dollars. The men were saved to society and a useful future and the entire community benefited as a consequence.

THOUSANDS AT WORK

The depression in 1922 in the land was not of great duration and was succeeded by seven years of unprecedented prosperity. With a view to minimizing the burden imposed upon the workers of our city as a consequence of the present depression I this year, sought and obtained authority from the Legislature to put in operation a law, enacted upon my recommendation in my last term as mayor in 1926, for the construction of a subway extension in Governor sq. When the hearing was held at the State House before the committee on metropolitan affairs, I suggested an amendment that the city be authorized to perform the work under the day labor system with preference being given to service men, thousands of whom are today unemployed, and the authority was granted. The work is now in progress and it was originally estimated that it would take three full years for completion. I suggested to the transit commissioner that it consider the adoption of a double shift system in the building of the extension at Governor sq. and to this the commission readily assented with the result that 2000 instead of 200, will be employed for a period of over two years. As a further means of providing a measure of relief for those willing and able to work, but unable to procure employment, I approved of estimates for the construction of the East Boston tunnel, and while the question was being debated as to whether or not a bridge might be substituted for the tunnel, I urged the transit commission to proceed with their plan in order that the work, if tunnel would be made at once, involving an expenditure of $16,000,000 dollars, which still further reduces the rank of the unemployed.

STRICT PROGRAM

I sought authority from the Legislature to conduct as a further means of promoting industrial prosperity to borrow eleven millions of dollars, the seven millions of dollars and the largest force employed in street construction and widenings. The Legislature, in its wisdom and generosity, granted me seven millions of dollars and the largest force employed in street construction and widenings. The program of street improvement now in progress in Boston is now at work. With a view to providing still further aid for the unemployed I forced a school construction program involving an expenditure of fifteen millions of dollars. The Legislature granted me authority to spend five millions of dollars this year in addition to two and a half millions unexpended and available from last year. Plans are well under way for this building program of seven and one-half millions of dollars, which should provide opportunity for employment of mechanics and laborers engaged in building construction.

FAITH IN NATION

I have favored these major expenditures because of an abiding faith in the future of Boston, the Commonwealth and the United States of America. Would to God there was more faith manifest in every city and town in America and by the leaders of industrial and commercial enterprises. It was St. Paul who said "Faith without good works is of no avail" and only we can say that faith with good work is the salvation of America. The hope of America lies in the application of the principles responsible for the success of real estate enterprise, careful planning, intelligent and courageous action. There was a time in the life of nations when smallpox, yellow fever, bubonic plague, diphtheria, tuberculosis and countless other diseases destructive in character were believed unconquerable. They have yielded in progress of time to the advance of science and the work of self-sacrificing men in the medical and surgical profession. There was a time in the life of the world when liberty and equality of opportunity were believed unobtainable. There was a time when human slavery was regarded as a permanent institution, yet

25 LIFEGUARDS TO BE ON HAND AT BIG SWIM

Twenty-five of the most capable swimmers in this section will serve as life guards at the Boston Evening American girls' swimming races at the Charles river basin on Saturday, August 23.

This is in accordance with the practice of safeguarding the contestants in these races in case they are seized with cramps.

"Bill" Squires of Medford and the Boston Swimming Association New England 880-yard and one-mile champion, will be one of the guards. Another will be Gordon Connolly, captain of the Boston Swimming Association team, and New England champion at 50 yards free-style, and the medley.

GIRL OF 8 ENTERS

Edward Murphy of the B. S. A. and William Ward, who has charge of the guards at the Medford beaches, will also be on hand, and Ward will bring several of his assistants. Names of the other guards will be announced later.

Entries are pouring in from all over New England and the number of young girls and novices entering the meet is highly gratifying to the management.

It may well be that the new champions will be found among these newcomers and the number of entrants alone indicates that the star performers who will be representing us will have to be at their best to win.

Eight-year-old Mary Harinett of 81 Auckland st., Dorchester, sent her entry in yesterday. She will compete in the 50 yards, freestyle, open for girls under 14.

COUPON IN THIS ISSUE

Anna Udaloy, 15, of 109 Silver st., South Boston; Dorothy Waldron, 16, of 771 Columbia rd., Dorchester; Lillian Jewell, 13, of North Reading, and her sister, Betty, 12, are other recent entrants.

All contestants must be registered as this meet is officially sanctioned by the New England Amateur A. A. U. Register with J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect st., Cambridge, who will supply registration numbers.

The Boston Swimming Association, sponsor of scores of the best swimmers in this country, is associated in the management of the races, and J. Bradlee Fenno, 80 State st., room 727, has the official entry blanks, which may be used in place of the coupon appearing in this edition of the Boston Evening American.

Instructions as to entries must be followed carefully. Each entrant is limited to three events. With regard to the fancy diving competition, each girl entering must specify the dives she intends to make, giving the number, which must include front, back and front jackknife dives.

Police Seek Fourth Bond Plot Suspect

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP)— police trap was set today for the fourth and last member of the "brokerage" firm supposed to have handled hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of securities taken in big robberies all over the country. Three alleged members of the ring were arrested yesterday and $18,800 in stolen securities recovered.

The three seized were Leo Mergen, former bank cashier of Beloit, Kan.; Stanley McCormick, former Minneapolis broker, and R. W. Hampton of Indianapolis.

we have witnessed the passing of these evils.

God grant that the hour may speedily arrive when we will witness the passing of not only the four evils which have afflicted mankind from the beginning of time, namely, ignorance, poverty, disease and crime, but when we will witness the passing of the primary cause of the four evils, unemployment, those in the world willing and able to work.

A supplementary article by Mayor Curley, the fifth and last in the series, will be printed in our next issue.

20 PLANES IN AIR MEET

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

With 20 ships in the air the Sportsmens' air meet at Hyanna Airport today opened with an aerial parade over that town and surrounding territory, led by Joshua Crane, Jr.

Hardly had the day started under the threat of poor weather, than visiting ships began arriving from New York and points in New England. A formation of five planes from Dennison Airport flew over the field before noon, and Walter Green, in one of the ships, gave a short exhibition flight.

A complete program of events has been mapped out by "Doc" Edward Ormsby, director of the two-day show. It includes speed races, bomb dropping, balloon bursting and "dead stick" landings and exhibition flying by Crane in a Waco biplane.

Tonight Buht Airsedan, owned by North Shore Airways, and flown by Lyle "Slim" Halstead, is expected to "ship on a night flying exhibition. If the weather prevents this part of the show, all the buildings and planes on the field will be floodlighted for public inspection.

Tomorrow the program begins at one o'clock, and continues until darkness.

SEEK EVIDENCE OF MAIL FRAUD BY PROMOTER

Another federal move against "stock racketeers" in this State was underway today as postal inspectors investigated the case of Warren C. Carter, alias Warren Young, stock salesman and promoter of a "tipster sheet."

Action was recently taken against Carter after he was accused of having sold Howard C. Hull, of Nantucket, $4000 worth of fraudulent stock. Carter, who had his office in New York City, sold the greater part of his stock through the mails.

After the stock of the William A. Arthur Company and the Massapaqua Corporation, which Carter sold, was banned, the New York Supreme Court ordered the companies into receivership.

SALE BANNED

Complaints received by the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau regarding the companies were turned over to the Federal officials for investigation.

At the time the sale of stock in both Carter's companies was banned, New York State authorities uncovered more than $65,000 deposited in three different banks in Carter's name.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner today completed plans to hold another conference with the district attorneys of the counties where the "stock racketeers" operated.

EVIDENCE READY

Already three district attorneys have evidence ready to present to grand juries.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. George B. Lourie, aided by Police Inspector John Mitchell, continued investigating the operations of several large corporations which procured customers by offering merchandise with the stock.

The dealings of a fountain pen company, also came under the scrutiny of the attorney-general's office after several complaints made to the Stock Fraud Bureau were turned over to that department.

The company is said to have offered one share of common stock and a fountain pen for $2. The market selling price of these pens, however, is from $5 to $7.

May Summon Walker in Job Graft Probe

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—District Attorney Thomas C. Crain announced today that "if necessary or desirable he would summon Mayor James J. Walker and George W. Olvany, former leader of Tammany Hall, to testify in the grand jury investigation of charges that George F. Ewald paid $12,000 to be appointed a city magistrate.

Hearst Junior Golf Tournament Popular

Mr. Boston took a peek at the large number of entries which have already been received for the Hearst junior golf tournament which will be staged at the Wollaston Golf Club beginning on August 25.

"The healthy entry list indicates the great interest there is in golf," said Mr. Boston. "There are plenty of young players who are confident they have the ability to come through the Hearst tournament a winner.

"I expect there will be more than 200 youthful golf stars on hand for the opening day's play. And any one of them is liable to come through with a victory. These youngsters know their golf and have nerves of steel when under fire.

"The only expense for those who desire to compete will be their caddy fees. Even junior golfers insist on having caddies, though I have known some pretty good golfers who turned in low scores despite the fact they lugged their own clubs around the links.

"If you are a junior golfer and are anxious to find out how good you are in competition, enter the Hearst junior tournament.

See's Decision on Carnera Is Wise

"I believe Leon See, manager of Primo Carnera, made a wise decision when he decided to send the giant Italian after the headliners in the heavyweight group.

"See says he is ready to match Carnera with Campolo, Sharkey, Stribling or Schmeling. Primo has proved a big drawing card and would play to a large crowd if pitted against any of the four men named by See as prospective opponents.

"See says Carnera has had sufficient seasoning in minor bouts and that he is now prepared to tackle all comers.

"Carnera is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 270 pounds, so a big man he is fast. Anybody his size should be able to hit.

"Norman Hurst, British sports writer, tells me Carnera stood up under punishment well in his matches with Young Stribling in Europe.

"I believe the American sport public would like to see Carnera tested under fire in a bout with a recognized leader in the heavyweight division.

"In view of Carnera's suspension in New York, his major effort will be staged in Atlantic City or Chicago. The Illinois Athletic Commission recently lifted its ban on Carnera.

Kid Chocolate Proved Himself Real Fighter

"Although defeated by Jackie Berg, Kid Chocolate left the ring a hero. He spotted Berg nine pounds and gave the Englishman a furious battle. Many of the ringside experts were of the opinion Chocolate was entitled to the decision. Chocolate may not be as great a ring star as George Dixon was, but he is the nearest thing to the 'Little Chocolate' that has ever come to the front."

Crack Field in Hawthorne Handicap

Chicago, Aug. 9 (INS)—More than a dozen crack horses were expected to start today in the fourth running of the Hawthorne Handicap, outstanding race of the present summer season at the Hawthorne track here. The event is a six-furlong race for three-year-olds and up at a mile and one-sixteenth for $25,000 in added money.

Seventeen horses were nominated overnight. Brown Wisdom and My Dandy seem certain to rule as favorites if they start, with the odds probably less than 2 to 1.

Tilden Heads Draw in Eastern Tourney

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Big Bill Tilden heads the draw for the men's eastern grass court championships, starting today on the courts of the Westchester Country Club at Rye.

Nine of the country's first 10 ranking players are entered as well as four British players. Of this country's leading stars only Wilmer Allison, John Doeg, Wilbur F. Coen, Fritz Mercur, Berkeley Bell, Frank Hunter, John Van Ryn and Gregory Mangin, all in the first 10, will participate.

The British contingent includes J. S. Cuff, H. G. N. Kitson, S. J. Perry and James Nuthall.

COLLEGIANS STRENGTHEN TIGERS

By BILL CONNELL

In all the history of big league baseball there have been few athletes who have stepped out of the classroom and into the major circuit lineup. Yet this year, two Holy Cross College men have landed in the big show and seem set to stick, with the Detroit Tigers.

Gene Desautels of Southbridge, and Jim Shevlin of Cincinnati, O., are the young men who made good in a hurry. Both were graduated from Holy Cross in June, with very high scholastic standing.

Bill Connell

Shevlin faced a tough assignment in going after a first base berth, for Dale Alexander, giant initial sacker of the Tigers, had he job cinched.

Desautels, however, went behind the plate and soon became first-string catcher of the team despite the presence of a pair of veteran backstops in the club roster.

And he has been taking his turn back of the plate regularly, catching all the pitchers of the Tigers, especially Earl Whitehill, a southpaw, and George Uhle, a right hander.

Desautels Likes Big League Hurling

"The big league pitchers are great to work with," replied Desautels in answer to the question today. "They are, in fact, easier to catch than college pitchers.

"They know just what they want to do with every pitch before they start to throw the ball and certainly have wonderful ability in working on the batters.

"I've found the hitting different, though. It is a lot more difficult to hit the pitching of the league men than to get blows against a college hurler.

"Every pitch the league men throw has something on it and they seldom pitch the same kind of ball to a batter.

"The pitching is good all the time. I had a hard time hitting at first, but I hope I have become a bit more effective at bat since then."

That last modest remark was too conservative. Desautels, who was near the top of the list in the league hitter, has advanced a great deal in his hitting during the past few weeks.

Naturally he had difficulty when he first went to bat against big league hurling. But, a smart catcher, he soon diagnosed some of the things on which the pitching chiefs baffled him at first. Then he started to hit, and has been picking up in his batting average since that time.

Holy Cross Star Directs Pitchers

Desautels' big asset is his intelligent way of working the pitchers. During the first few games he had to allow the pitchers to use their own judgment, but he rapidly learned their strong and weak points and now he directs every pitch, even when the best of the Detroit staff is on the mound.

Occasionally the hurler "shakes him off," as ball players say when the pitcher disagrees with the catcher, but most of the time the mound men are content to throw the kind of ball the young catcher wants.

Just how good is Desautels' selection of pitches may be seen in the team averages. Since the Holy Cross hero joined Detroit the team has been on a winning streak, and the good brand of baseball being turned in indicates that the veterans of the pay circuit will continue right down to the end of the season, barring accidents.

Shevlin Promises to Become Regular

Jim Shevlin was leading batter in college ranks this year, but since joining Detroit he has not been hitting well. Shevlin rated as a magnificent average in college by beating out a flock of dumb and weak hits. Desautels always could hit the pil much harder than his mate.

But Shevlin is coming along and should be getting his share of base blows before long. Just as soon as his hitting becomes steadier he stands a good chance of winning the regular first base job, for his fielding is brilliant.

JUMP FROM COLLEGE TO BIG LEAGUE FAME

Gene Desautels

Jim Shevlin

IT VERY RARELY HAPPENS that college players, no matter how good they are, can step direct into big time baseball. Two former Holy Cross boys have done that very thing, and judging by their playing, they are due to stay up there. Gene Desautels, stellar backstop at college, has been doing the catching for the Detroit Tigers since he joined them after graduation in June, and Jim Shevlin, fast baseman, is giving Dale Alexander a hard battle for the regular position.

ALLISON LOSES TO SIDNEY WOOD

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—Continuing his sensational winning streak, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York defeated Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., Davis Cup star, in the final round of the Meadow Club's invitation tennis tournament today. The scores of their five-set battle were 3—6, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Wood's brilliant victory over Allison i nthe final here marked his second triumph in important tournaments in the last few days. Last Friday he captured the Seabright, J. invitation event by a one-sided win over Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif.

Playing at the same spectacular clip here, he beat George Lott, Frank Shields and finally Allison in successive days to capture the coveted Meadow Club trophy. All three were five-set matches and Wood, although slightly build, outlasted his opponents on every occasion, also displaying remarkable match-playing ability in refusing to admit defeat when trailing badly.

Wood, pronounced by Bill Tilden the most improved player he has seen, is a nephew of Julian Myrick, former high official of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and also of Watson Washburn, former Davis Cup player.

Played Lacoste When a Youngster in Short Pants

Young Wood is an experienced player for his 18 years, having competed abroad as well as in the National championships. He opposed such stars as Rene LaCoste of France when he was only a youngster in short pants.

Hailed as a coming star two years ago when he gave Jack Crawford of Australia a great battle in the national title play at Forest Hills, Wood dropped into the background last year when ill health compelled him to take a rest.

He has grown steadily better with each ensuing match this year until today he emerged triumphant from a tournament in which Bill Tilden, Frank Hunter, George Lott and the other leading players of the United States fell by the wayside.

Young Stribling Leaves for Home

London, Aug. 9 (AP)—Young Stribling, American boxer, left London today for his Georgia home and a holiday. All he would say was, "I had a good time. The British public are great, and I hate to go home."

The fighter said that his father was handling his business arrangements and that he hoped he soon would meet Max Schmeling in a bout for the heavyweight championship.

Wolgast Is Winner

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Midget Wolgast, recognized flyweight champion in Pennsylvania and New York, won an easy decision over Canto Rabieto, Pasadena, Cal., in a 10-round little bout here last night.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, Aug. 9 (INS)—Goodness, gracious me, but the tumult in the press cell at the old P. G. Thursday night after the committee turned in that majority report on the Chocolate-Berg battle was really tumultuous.

Never, or hardly ever, have I seen the lads so steamed up.

In fact, I was slightly steamed up myself.

"Why," I heard myself muttering, "it's scandalous! It's outrageous it's vile! It's awful! It's unutterable! It'll hurt boxing! Why, tut-tut! Fish-posh! Fiz-pip!"

"Shall I send all that, inquired my telegraph operator, coldly, pausing in his key tapping.

"By no means," I replied. "I am thinking out loud."

Mr. Jackie Farrell of the Daily News rose in one of the highest dudgeons I have viewed in years, although, to be sure, Mr. Farrell needs a rather high dudgeon to do his dudgeoning in. He called upon the heavens to witness that never before had he heard such a dum decision, though later he privately admitted that he might have forgotten a couple for the moment.

"It's villainous!" said Mr. Farrell, from his dudgeon. "I'll never get over it!"

Mr. Don Skene, of the Tribune, who rarely raises his voice above E-flat, was heard 15 chairs away saying: "Scoundrelly! Dastardly!"

Thought Chocolate Should Have Won

You see, we were of that wing of the party that thought Chocolate should have won the decision, and given more time to organize we might eventually have formed a posse comitatus to take steps against Mr. Harry Haley, the referee, and Mr. Joe Aguello, the judge who voted for Berg.

Well, anyway, we might have chipped in to buy Charley Mathison, the other judge, a leather medal for casting an untrammeled ballot for Chocolate. But presently they commenced tearing the ring down right in our faces, and tore all and tore out the lights, so we all had to take to the shell holes out in Eighth ave.

Of course, I shall always believe to my dying day that Chocolate was entitled to that decision. I believe that the slender Cuban in this battle, spotting the Englishman all of 10 or 12 pounds, demonstrated that he is the greatest little ringman of these times.

My only criticism of his fight Thursday night is that he did too much holding, but against the superior poundage and strength of Berg he can scarcely be blamed for that.

Bob Veach's Son Dies After Accident

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9 (AP)—Robert Clifton Veach, 18, son of Bob Veach, veteran outfielder, now with the Jersey City Club of the International League, died from injuries suffered in an automobile accident on July 30.

Notes of the Sandlots

Roslindale will have a chance to climb to the top in the Twi League scramble when they meet St. John at New Brunswick today in a twin bill.

If Roslindale can take two games from the New Brunswick team they'll be in a top tie with Malden in the second half race. Roslindale will use Herb Rawding and Bill Ross against St. John's and will rely on these two chuckers to pull them through.

Lloyd King and Lloyd Sterling, the two ace pitchers for St. John, are likely to face Roslindales Pelloquin, another St. John hurler, may see action if Roslindale treats either of the Lloyds roughly.

Dorchester should place another victory in their record tomorrow when they face Quincy, the cellar occupant, at Quincy. Dorchester, going like a prairie fire, should have little trouble stopping Quincy.

The Boston Evening American

nine will play the Greenwich A. C. of Dorchester at the Town Field today, the game starting at 2:30. The American team will line up with John Bishop, center field; Mark McIntyre, shortstop; Billy McGuire, third base; John Dignan, left field; Bill Jones, first base; Billy Woods, second base; Frank Sullivan, right field; Lefty Allen, catcher, and Al Barnard, pitcher.

Buck Freeman, former Holy Cross athlete, has been providing the big punch for the Dorchester Twilight League team in its forward march to the second half pennant.

Although the official averages have not been compiled it is estimated that Buck is hitting for more than .500.

BOL D'OR RACE AT REVERE

Six motor pace racers will go after the Bol d'Or trophy tonight at the Revere Cycle Track. The Bol d'Or, a 50-mile race, is also a championship affair and the winner will get five points to his credit in the race for the American motor paced crown.

Pacing starter Dan Barry's gun will be Francc Georgetti, present champion; Al Letournier, who is leading in the race for the title; George Chapman, seven times titlist; Franz Duelberg, youthful German; Charley Jaeger and Frankie Keenan of Revere.

Nat Butler has arranged a strong preliminary card to support the Bol d'Or. It includes a special sprint match and other races for both amateurs and professionals.

In the sprint match, to be contested in three one-mile heats, Harris Horder of Australia, likely sprint champion this year, faces Charley Ritter, former amateur king, and Fergio Matteini.

PUNCHING POWER TURNED TIDE OF BATTLE IN BIG FEATHERWEIGHT TUSSLE

By JACK CONWAY

"Terrible Terry" McGovern! There was a fighter. He was a rushing, crashing, smashing two fisted man who did not ask for or give quarter once he breezed into action in the ring.

Many of the old-time ring fans rate McGovern as the greatest featherweight that ever pulled on a padded glove. They place him ahead of such sturdy warriors as George Dixon, the Negro, and Frank Erne and Young Corbett.

McGovern was a little man with a punch. He was pure destruction once the gong sounded for the opening of a round. His watchword was "Forward!" And how he let his punches fly. He knocked out his ring rivals with the same ease that our New England farmers cut down hay.

"Terrible Terry" was born Joseph Terrence McGovern at Johnstown, Pa., on March 8, 1880. He was born of Irish parents.

At the age of 17, Terry was battling in the bantamweight division. He did most of his boxing in Brooklyn and New York rings. His bombastic style of milling immediately caught on with the public. He punched his way into popular favor over night.

Jack Conway

Clubs where Terry showed were crammed. They soon started to call him "Terrible Terry" on account of his marvelous ability as a fighter.

"Let me hit him and I'll knock him cold," Terry would say as he would leave his dressing room.

And he usually did stiffen the opposition once he found the range.

Took in Dixon

After McGovern had been in the fistic wars for three years, there was a demand for a meeting between "Terrible Terry" and Dixon. The bout was arranged for New York on January 9, 1890.

A quarter of a million dollars was bet on this bout.

Dixon had been fighting for 12 years at the time. He was skillful and resourceful, but, naturally, was beginning to show the effects of his hard ring warfare.

He was in much the same position Sullivan was when he fought Corbett at New Orleans. John L. had been champion over a span of 10 years and had passed the peak of his fighting ability when he entered the ring with Corbett. I do not wish to take away any credit from Corbett for his victory, but Jim will tell you himself that the "Boston Strong Boy" was on the way out when he battled him for the title.

McGovern caught up to Dixon under much the same conditions. "Terrible Terry" was young, strong, ambitious, aggressive and above all, a terrific puncher.

Dixon had experience on his side, but he had lost some of his sparkle, advancing years had destroyed some of the killer instinct in his makeup.

Dixon had been tipped that McGovern was aggressive and a terrific puncher. "The Little Chocolate" figured that if he were to stand back and try to outbox McGovern that the latter's natural fighting qualities would enable him to gain the victory in a long battle.

So Dixon came out of his corner fighting in the opening round. This was to the liking of "Terrible Terry", who felt he could outpunch any featherweight in the world.

Outfought Terry

McGovern, however, had a sad awakening. The experienced Dixon shot punches with such rapidity that McGovern was in a bad way at the end of the first round.

Dixon continued his terrific pace in the second round. He barraged for the head and body in a desperate effort to win by a quick knockout. McGovern fought back with great fury, but the crafty Dixon usually beat Terry to the punch.

One of the high spots of the bout occurred in the third round when McGovern led with a terrific right hand punch for the jaw. The crafty Dixon stepped inside of the blow and scored with a left hook to the chin.

The suddenness and power of the punch sent McGovern back. He was dazed and groggy at the bell.

With youth on his side McGovern recuperated between rounds and was his old self when he came out for the fourth round. The milling was also fast and furious in this frame with honors about even.

Dixon began to tire with the fifth round. The terrific pace he had set in the early chapters of the bout began to tell on him.

McGovern was quick to sense this and he fought all the harder. At close quarters McGovern directed his attack to his opponent's body. This body attack slowed Dixon down and made him a target for "Terrible Terry's" blows.

From then on it was McGovern's fight. He furnished one of the greatest sensations ever witnessed in a New York ring when he knocked out Dixon after a furious mixup in the eighth round.

Terry Popular Idol

It is seldom that the public has paid tribute to a fighter like it did to McGovern. As champion, he was a sort of national hero.

As has already been told, Dixon fought on for a few more years and eventually died broke in Boston. I am indebted to J. O'Neil of West Roxbury for the information that "The Little Chocolate" is buried in Mount Hope Cemetery, Walkhill st., Mattapan.

Jack Conway will have another story on "Terrible Terry" McGovern in Monday's Boston Evening American.

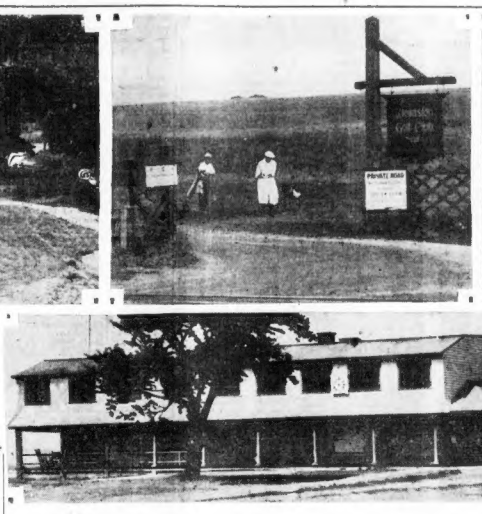
Prominent Junior Golfers Enter Hearst Tourney

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BUNKERED BATTLEGROUND WHERE BOYS WILL PLAY FOR HEARST JUNIOR GOLF TROPHIES

THE THIRD GREEN, which is well protected by bunkers and sand traps and which will test the courage and ability of the 200 odd golfers expected in the second Hearst Junior Golf Tournament on August 25. The Wollaston course is one of the best in the state.



WOLLASTON. Above is the entrance to the Wollaston Golf Club from Granite ave. Behind the golfer teeing off at the entrance can be seen one of the hills which might bother some golfers but not the juniors. Below is the Wollaston clubhouse, where the juniors will assemble on the opening day.

LOOKING IT OVER. John L. Black, chairman of the tournament committee, and Jack Gray, the Wollaston professional.

Well-Known Juniors Will Play for Hearst Prizes

With the announcement of the second William Randolph Hearst Junior Golf Tournament only three days old, close to 50 entries have been received, the most outstanding of which is that of Leon K. Emerson, a well known junior wood and iron wielder, whose home club is Wollaston, the scene of the battle which commences on August 25.

Emerson reached the quarter-finals of the Massachusetts' junior golf championship two weeks ago at Belmont Spring when he was knocked out by Robert Hunter. A year ago, in this same tournament, he was runner-up, losing to Bill Donnelly, the 1929 champion, in the final.

Leon comes under the age limit for he won't reach his 20th birthday until December. Emerson, because of his record in junior ranks, becomes the early favorite in this tournament but, since there are two weeks to go before the entries close, there will probably be a number of other boys equally selectable for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy.

OTHER STARS ENTER

The names of Stanley Neptune, South Shore; Bobby Hopkins, Wollaston; and Charley Pickering of Wollaston are also in the lists already and these boys will offer serious competition to a golfer of Emerson's caliber.

Neptune had a high rating in the last Caddie's championship and is one of the soundest golfers in younger circles. Hopkins and Pickering are both considered very good and should be well up in the coming tournament because they are members of the club where the battle will be waged and know the course.

Robert Bolton of Waltham, who is spending his vacation in Montreal, got his copy of the Boston Evening American in that Dominion city and hustled a letter to the golf editor. Bob wanted to make sure that he gets into the qualifying round and is going to cut his vacation short in order to play in the tournament.

Due to a misprint the rules stated that a junior golfer who accepted pay after his 18th birthday would not be eligible. This is erroneous. The age should be 18. So if that's holding you up send your entry along. It will be accepted.

NO PLAYING CHARGE

Some have queried regarding green fees at Wollaston. The Wollaston Golf Club and the Boston Evening American have co-operated so as to eliminate all playing charges during the tournament. However, the boys will have to furnish their own golf balls and other equipment.

Others have asked regarding an opportunity to tune up on the Wollaston course before the tournament. There will be no chance for practice. Wollaston officials have been good enough to offer their links for the boys and consequently find it impossible to set aside any day for practice for it is a busy outfit with a large membership and it might interfere with the members.

The tournament is swelling to greater proportions day by day. There will be 250 entries in the tournament if the first few days' response is any criterion. Clip the blank and send it in. You are drawn to win some sort of a prize that you can display with pride to relatives and friends.

Vineyard Haven Wins Two Races

Vineyard Haven, Aug. 9—The skippers of Vineyard Haven Yacht Club boosted their lead over the Edgartown Club by 21 points in yesterday's team races sailed here over a choppy sea ahliened by a strong southwest wind just under reefing strength.

Sailing in Wes Boots, Elliot Willauer of Vineyard Haven won both races. His achievement in the second race was particularly noteworthy as the fleet was closely massed at the last buoy.

Dilboy Bouts Must End by Midnight

The Somerville Board of Aldermen at their meeting last night passed a resolution fixing midnight as the hour at which all boxing matches held at Dilboy Field must come to an end hereafter.

The resolution followed complaints from residents of the section in which the field is located. It is stated that sometimes the open air matches have lasted until nearly one o'clock, and that neighbors have been kept awake by the noise of cars afterwards.

The matches have been sponsored by Dilboy Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and also by the athletic association of the city employes. Copies of the resolutions were ordered sent to both these organizations.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

I find players to be rather uniformly successful with their back swing with irons after they master the knack of starting the clubhead away with a direct above, which moves the club back in the right direction, and when they do this without changing their wrist position. Now just after this above-a-way has been made is the point where the wrists exert an inclination to straighten out, which at once arrests the turning of your body. If the arms go directly upward from there you have no pivot. So after the above-away be careful that you keep your left arm continuously in motion, and with the wrist held to the same position. This keeps the body turning and as it turns, the club you will observe, goes with it in perfect unison. This is the action you have been working for—and it's not hard to get.

Essex County four ball invitation.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Ould Newbury open.

By BILL GRIMES

Outstanding among next week's golf tournaments is the annual Country Club of New Bedford invitation, which will open with an 18-hole qualifying round on Wednesday and match play for the remainder of the week.

Although for the past two seasons the New Bedford invitation has been a stand out among the M. G. A. tournaments, predictions favor next week's tourney as the greatest in the history of golf in the Whaling City. Already the list of entries exceeds that of last year, when a new record was established. Also, the field will be composed of the leading Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut golfers.

Bill Grimes

Carl Nettelbladt, Green Hill, and Chick Grasse Mt. Pleasant, were the finalists at New Bedford last year, and the Worcesterite won the title. They will have considerable more trouble reaching the finals this year for the field is one of the fastest that ever played in any invitation medal and match play event.

Although the Bay State will be represented by some fine golfers, Rhode Island is making a serious bid to win top honors. T. Suffern Tailer, Brad Oxnard and Joe Perzullo are outstanding among the players from Little Rhody who will compete at New Bedford.

After the qualifying round on Wednesday, the New Bedford field will be divided into five divisions, which will start match play on Thursday morning. There will be a medal play tournament for the non-qualifiers on Thursday afternoon, at which time the divisions of beaten eights get under way.

On Friday, there will be a four ball tournament and while the finals are going on Saturday, the entire field will take part in a handicap medal play tournament.

There will be the usual number of valuable prizes offered to the winners in every event. There will also be many special prizes.

The Essex County Club will have a large field for its annual four ball battle against handicaps while the golfers in the Western part of the State will compete for the Stockbridge Cup of the Stockbridge Country Club.

Hatherly will attract a large and fast field for its four ball invitation on Thursday and Friday and being the only open, Ould Newbury should have a large entry.

Mahoney had the better of a pitchers' battle in the nightcap, allowing Wareham only three hits.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Elmer Ward, the New England amateur champion, will play in the Norfolk open this afternoon. "Chipper" has been through a tough week of competitive golf at Portland and his "Andy Browns" took a terrible beating from the sun-baked Maine links.

Whenever the conversation drifts around to dwell upon real fellows and true friends, don't pass up Jesse Guilford. Learning that his friend Elmer Ward had reached the finals at Portland, "The Gun" hopped a train and followed his old pal during the afternoon round with Dick Chapman.

Guilford's presence at the Portland Country Club unquestionably was just the tonic Elmer Ward needed to crash through to his first major title. In order to sidestep the bluat Jess would have put on him had he lost, Elmer played some of the best golf he displayed during the championship after he caught a glimpse of his wellwisher in the gallery.

The fifth annual New England Amateur championship was one of the finest title classics ever conducted and the Portland Country Club is to be congratulated for the success it made of the event. E. H. Brady, Paul Harmon, Hi Bicker and our old friend Dan Horan did not miss a detail, while Fred Corcoran, of the M. G. A. contributed valuable assistance.

T. Steffern Taller, the multi-millionaire from Newport, is as regular a boy as ever played in open competition. He is noticably democratic, a fine golfer and a true sportsman. Tommy Taller is destined to become one of the most popular and leading golfers in the game within a few years.

In order to stimulate interest in the association in Vermont, the sixth annual New England amateur championship may be played in the Green Mountain State. There are three probable sites, Manchester, Burlington and Barre.

In the last two New England amateur championships, Bill Storey, Brae Burn, and John Hubbard, Bridgeport, Conn., have been tied at the conclusion of the qualifying rounds. At Hartford a year ago, they tied for the medal and at Portland, as non-qualifiers, by a slugle stroke.

After returning from Portland, Raynor M. Gardiner, secretary of the New England Golf Association sent a letter to Dan Horan, congratulating the former Massachusetts state handicapper for the excellent assistance he offered in making the fifth annual the greatest of all New England championships. It was a very thoughtful and highly appreciated act.

With the Essex County four-ball invitation list for next week, sports wear shoppes and the cleaners are playing to capacity houses this week.

The time is not far off when Bill Arnold of Cohasset, Oyster Harbors, Charles nut, etc., is going to win a State or sectional golf title. Arnold is improving rapidly, due to a large extent to the fact that he is now devoting some time and thought to other things than golf.

Bill's development has been retarded because he has been overlooked. He was within one stroke of Emery Stratton, the medalist, at Portland, and was on his way to a victory over Dick Chapman until a uncalled-for remark was passed after he had been laid a dead stymie on the 9th green.

Mel Merritt, Salem, has been shanking shots badly all season. He has consulted any number of professionals to discover a cure, but to no avail. Then, along came Brad Oxnard, a former Rhode Island amateur champion, and within three minutes Merritt was hitting iron shots better than ever.

Oxnard's method for curing a shank is to address the ball as though actually going to hit it, but to swing the clubhead inside the ball. He advised Merritt to take three or four inside swings and then hit the ball. Following out these instructions, Merritt discovered that he had lost the shot which has ruined him in many rounds this season.

After his lesson from Oxnard Mel Merritt, who is nothing if not determined, went out to the seventh tee at Portland, from where he had shanked four balls into the pond and came up with a 12 during the first qualifying round and played four balls to the green. Believe it or not, he had two deuces and two threes.

Graphic Arts Beaten

Agawam A. A., although outhit almost two to one, nosed out Graphic Aris, 2 to 1, at the Common last night.

O'Brien of Graphic Arts held Agawam to four singles. Grady, first baseman for the losers, made three hits.

BRADDOCK AND HUNT TRAINING

Alvin "Babe" Hunt of Ponca City and James J. Braddock of Jersey City are in town for their ten round battle at Braves Field on Monday night.

Hunt arrived in town with Matchmaker Alex McLean, of the Boston Garden, who was in New York for the Berg-Chocolate fight, and worked out at Toland's Gym with Elzear Rioux.

Braddock will finish his training at Kelley & Mayo's Gym this afternoon. Braddock has been training at Orangeburg with Babe McCorgary and John Patrick Sullivan.

Steve Gorman will meet Jack Dudley in the semifinal 10-rounder for the Diamond Belt and a purse of $1000. Harry Allen will battle Babe McCorgary in an eight-rounder.

The semifinals of the Diamond Belt tourney in the flyweight class will bring together Gene Bianco and Georgie Ostro and George Paulin and Scoops Roulier.

Marksons Gain Top of Lynn K. C. League

Marksons, winners of the pennant in the first half of Lynn Knights of Columbus Baseball League, are now on top of the second half pile, having defeated General Electric, 7 to 2, at Barry park, Lynn, last night.

St. Pius and Standards played to a 1-1 tie at Memorial park in the only other league game last night. St. Pius had its chance to win the game in the fourth with three on, but a squeeze play ruined things. The game was a five-inning affair.

All-Service Bouts at Winthrop Legion

Sergeant Dan Lucas of Fort McKinley will clash with Sandy Taylor of the U. S. S. Southerly in the main bout of the benefit show staged by the Winthrop Legion at Fort Banks, Winthrop, tonight.

It is the first Fort Banks show in nearly two years. It is under the direction of Commander Clark of Fort Banks and J. Franklin Rebuck, chairman of the Winthrop Tercentenary Committee.

North Medford Wins 28th

The North Medford club won its 28th game in 35 starts when it shut out the Hoyt Pals of Cambridge, 4 to 0, last night. Zampell held the losers to five hits and struck out five.

SAFETY AT CAMPS DISCUSSED ON AIR

NBC Chain Hears National Safety Council Talk

"Are summer camps safe?" a question made pertinent in the minds of thousands of parents by the recent drowning at a Maine boys' camp of Al Lassman, former New York University athlete, will be answered in a radio talk by Albert W. Whitney, vice-president of the National Safety Council, tonight at 6:30 over an NBC-WEAF network.

Whitney will base his conclusions on the results of a survey by a garduate fellow of Columbia University of 800 summer camps in which some 225,000 American boys and girls will spend at least part of their vacation.

STREET WORK CAUSES JAMS

Frequent traffic jams resulted yesterday following the closing of Boylston st., between Washington and Tremont sts., which placed a heavy burden on traffic officers for several blocks either side of the intersection. On Thursday, the first day the street was closed, traffic was not as heavy as yesterday.

At one time the officers turned off the new lights at Boylston and Tremont, and also at Tremont and Lagrange and Tremont and Stuart sts. in an effort to get traffic moving. Chief Engineer John F. Hurley announced later that they had no authority to turn off the lights and the situation was not aided thereby. On orders of Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode the lights were later turned on again.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

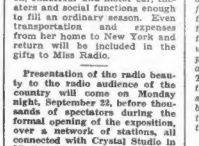
And now, gentle reader, comes another nation-wide beauty contest. Despite the pointed remarks of producers, magazine and newspaper editors to the effect that such contests have been done so much the public will no longer respond to such affairs, the quest for beauty goes merrily on and probably will until some all-wise providence changes man's nature.

This latest search for alluring femininity will be conducted by the Radio World's Fair, in cooperation with the National Association of Broadcasters, for the purpose of discovering the most beautiful radio artist in this country.

When the fortunate young lady is located, she will be brought to New York city to preside over the national radio exposition at Madison Square Garden, September 22-27. Here, surrounded with all the accoutrements which the prestige of her new station demands, she will reign in "modern queenly grandeur."

There will be a suite at an exclusive Gotham hotel, a chaperon, chauffeur and motor car, theaters and social functions enough to fill an ordinary season. Even transportation and expenses from her home to New York and return will be included in the gifts to Miss Radio.

Presentation of the radio beauty to the radio audience of the country will come on Monday night, September 22, before thousands of spectators during the formal opening of the exposition, over a network of stations, all connected with Crystal Studio in Madison Sq. Garden.



Just how this contest is to be conducted is not quite clear to us at present. But very likely the information will be broadcast over the great networks of the country. Having something of a weakness for beauty contests, we are going to follow this thing through; even have some sort of a hand in it if possible. Perhaps we won't be invited to be one of the judges, but there is nothing to prevent us from being on the side-lines cheering, and as we get further information we'll pass it along to you through this column.

Sometime when we have the where-withal to take us to New York for a few days, we're going to ask one of those nabobs at the "Stop and Go" signals at the cross-roads, how to get to 7 Doydown there who keeps sending us publicity—or at least he is responsible for having it sent—and we'd like to meet him. Whether he believes that we've back-slid pretty badly since our old Sunday-school days, and need a little spiritual tonic, or that Boston as a whole needs an awakening we can't quite make out.

However, our hat is off to Tom Noonan, the "Bishop of Chinatown," presiding genius of The Rescue Society, who will resume his Sunday afternoon broadcasts next month on a very sizable chain of stations (WHDH, Boston). If the "Bishop" is as persistent in looking after the welfare of his flock as he is at sending out his publicity notices, then he has some organization. Our best regards go to him.

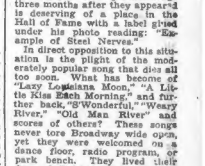
Recently we cited a situation in South Carolina where a law has been passed taxing radio owners and the challenging of the constitutionality of which was made by the Radio Manufacturers Association.

Word has just been received in this office that a temporary restraining order against enforcement of the law has been issued by Federal Judge Ernest F. Cochran, after a hearing on the petition.

Tucked in between an hour of Hotel Brunswick music, the manager of the Statler, Bradbury F. Cushing, will give the first of a series of three radio talks on the recreational advantages of Massachusetts at 10:35 tonight over WBZA. This talk will describe the historical places and beauty spots that abound in Boston and vicinity. The broadcasts are sponsored by the Mass. Industrial Commission, and the succeeding two broadcasts will tell of the industrial and agricultural opportunities in the State.

Jack Denny and his orchestra offers another of his Saturday night meetings at 7:15 over WNAC, and special arrangements feature the program. The orchestra is now in its fourth season at the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, and it will go to Englund next year to musically amuse the royal family. Everyone in the orchestra is a U. S. citizen, and the group holds the distinction of being the only American dance band carrying the crest of the Prince of Wales. Denny, a De Pauw graduate, is the originator of the brassless band. His rythmn is unique and his arrangements unusual, and he gets his brass effects with hot oboes, English horns, fifes and accordions.

It is time for an apprehensive treatise on the tragedies of popular songs. We may be bombed, stormed and misunderstood, but we still feel gratified if a wee portion of humanity chim-s in with us. First, there is an extreme need for a strong censorship of songs; not the ordinary censorship that removes the spice and leaves the weak tea, but a censorship that will either repeal a song that has grown too popular or else restrict it from being heard so disgustingly often. For example, "Anchors Aweigh," "The Stein Song," and further back, things like "Ramona," "Valentia,"



"Sonny Boy" and such. Anyone who enjoyed these songs three months after they appeared is deserving of a place in the Hall of Fame with a label glued under his photo reading: "Example of Steel Nerves."

In direct opposition to this situation is the plight of the moderately popular song that dies all too soon. What has become of "Lazy Louisiana Moon," "A Little Bit Independent," and further back, "S'Wonderful," "Weary River," "Old Man River" and scores of others? These songs never tore Broadway wide open, yet they were welcomed on a dance floor, radio program, or park bench. They lived their day and died ignominiously. Yet, when they make one of their rare appearances today, listeners are completely absorbed in them.

Which goes to show, song caches the ear of the public and then it hangs on long after it should have been dismissed, while other deserving numbers, both recent and old, fade and die like the hope of a spinster.

Mayor Calls Conference on Parking

Judy Meets the Man of Mystery

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Judith Archer is a country school teacher, 22, and good looking. She wants to be a college professor, while her mother would like her to go in the movies. But Judy lived a double life. She becomes interested in the story of a jewel robbery in London. She goes to New York and calls on Capt. Charley Marcena. He suggests Judy and her mother take a trip with him. She takes passage on Capt. Charley's ship for her mother and herself and draws all her money from the bank. Judy finds herself looking for the radio operator with the sea-green eyes—but he does not remember her at first. Then they spend hours together. Judy stumbles on a mystery at Halifax.

Chapter 16

With a sweeping, gallant gesture the dark-eyed man sprang up, put out a steadying hand to Judy, sawying as the ship slid over long, oily swells.

His dark, vivid face touched by humor, every gesture full of flattering concern, he helped her into the chair, folded the robe about her shoulders, brought his own robe and laid it across her knees.

He gathered up the tortoise rims; they were broken squarely across and the lenses were gleaming little sparkles on the deck.

"Ah—too bad—"

She was gazing at him in fascination, lips apart, cheeks rather white. He saw a frightened-looking girl whose moist gray eyes were half hidden behind a smudge of curling lashes; when she kept pressing her hands together, not speaking, he felt a pang. He wondered if her sight were dim, if perhaps she could not see without the spectacles.

Glasses Broken
Stranger Meets Her

"You'll have trouble without them? But perhaps you carry another pair?"

"Doesn't matter," she answered in a little voice. "Nonsense—I suppose they're just a habit—"

He gave a shrug, grinned broadly, made her a bow.

"A bad habit, if you won't mind my saying this. Some folks ought never wear glasses."

It was quite plain what he meant. The pleased glances he kept sending her proclaimed what no words would have dared.

Judy turned scarlet, snuggled under the robes, feeling caught and helpless. All her life she had done part of her living in a dream double of herself, and this other Judy had roamed in the ways of adventure, doing gay and awkward things, plunging into audacious loves, never dismayed or at a loss.

Now the real Judy had touched the edge of adventure in a city which had come swimming within her ken for an hour or two. But the adventure had not remained in the city; here it was following her out upon the rolling deep, bending over to scoop up broken bits of tortoise shell rims, smiling and audaciously imping she should never wear glasses.

Regal Charm
Young Man Had It

And she didn't know what to do; she was not the other Judy, who would have flipped an indifferent hand, sailed away into something else.

A sort of regal charm about this young fellow sitting there with his dark face slight, his eyes pouring laughter into hers.

Excitement came flushing up in her and a delightful sparkle of unconcern. A thrill in this—why, the very person she most wanted to meet! He could tell her what happened when he rounded the shrubs, stopped into the lane where the whole went slipping one after the other like Hannibal backfiring on a cold day.

She could find out from him—go circumspectly though, as they did in detective tales.

She gave him a slow, little smile, regarding him intently with her twilight-gray look, causing a flash of seriousness to go striking down his face.

"I want to see the sunset—different in this latitude—look—"

They watched across an undulating expanse of oxidized silver a west hung with curtain after curtain of mauve and pearly gauze. Low above waves which flung pennants of smoking foam down the wind was an incandescent ball tangled in the curtains. It hung there like a glowing cranberry fashioned for the dejection of a giant, round as eternity, cold in spite of its flame, throwing out no leaguelong rays of barbaric colors.

The curtains darkened at last ted cap such as workmen

BUSINESS MEN TO JOIN IN MEETING

Traffic Commissioner Conry Announces Move to Solve Downtown Problem

Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry announced today that Mayor James M. Curley has called a conference for Monday morning in an attempt to reach a solution of the downtown parking problem.

The meeting, to be held in the mayor's office at 11:30, will be attended by all members of the traffic bureau, and representatives of Boston business interests.

Commissioner Conry said the mayor is ambitious to solve the problem which shows little sign of improvement.

The first consideration, according to Commissioner Conry, will be given to trucks, on the theory that the movement of merchandise in and out of buildings is the essence of business.

He said the mayor was taking a personal interest in the traffic problem and the extension of the signal light system. He has ordered extensions made as rapidly as possible, and the traffic commission is about ready to advertise specifications for lights in Center st., West Roxbury, Commonwealth ave., and Washington st., Allston, and North Beacon and Market sts., Brighton.

There is considerable agitation, according to the traffic commissioner, for lights at Commonwealth ave., and Beacon st., where several serious accidents have happened in the last few months. He added he had received a number of letters praising the light system and not one objecting to it.

Probate Register Again Candidate

Arthur W. Sullivan, register of probate for Suffolk County, has filed with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook for the Democratic nomination for the office he now holds.

Sullivan was elected six years ago in a field of nine candidates, winning by a wide margin, although he had never held elective office before. He believes his record in office, which has been praised by persons connected with the courts, entitles him to another term.

BIG ARSON RING IS UNCOVERED IN BOSTON

Lawyer Involved in the Gang Blamed for Fire Losses Running Into Millions

Investigation of an arson ring which is said by police to involve a Boston lawyer, was being carried on by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today, after presentation to the Grand Jury of evidence gathered by the office of the State Fire Marshal and operatives of local insurance companies.

Deputy Fire Marshal Timothy C. Murphy said that state officers been working quietly on the case for the past week, following a fire which caused a tremendous loss. He described it as an isolated case and not necessarily connected with others of suspicious origin, which have occurred within the past few weeks.

At the start of the probe, officers learned that a young lawyer had acted as a go-between for a person who offered to "tip" an insurance company to the origin of a $1,000,000 fire, if it would pay him $10,000.

More than a score of fires within the past few weeks, involving several millio . in damage, are under investigation by operatives representing the insurance companies.

When no move had been made on the following day to accept his of. the attorney again got touch with the insurance compa and stated that if the company would post a $2,000 reward for the conviction of the firebugs, he would tell what he knew.

Representatives of the insurance company here refused to accept the offer and turned the case over to detectives of the local insurance company organization.

Deputy Supt. James McDevitt of the Boston police today assigned Inspectors Joseph Haggerty and William Liess tothe case. Four persons are said to be under suspicion.

Cambridge was without electric power about 10 minutes today due to mechanical difficulties at the Cambridge Electric Light Company plant.

PRATT REPORT IS PRESENTED

Report of the inquest board into the blunder killing of Boatswain Louis A. Pratt by his own comrades in Ipswich bay Monday night was received today by Capt. William H. Munter, commander of the Eastern Division, Coast Guard.

It is 30 pages in length and a "very thorough job," said Capt. Munter. He said he agreed with the findings and recommendations of Capt. L. R. Sands, president of the board, and forwarded the report to Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard at Washington.

Pratt was killed by machine gun fire when one Coast Guard boat mistook another for a rum runner.

"What's the matter, are ya blind? Didn't ya see my hand? Get over to the curb."

Motorists in Union sq., Somerville, might get out of the tickish situation by pleading that Bobby Clough's tiny hand was hidden by the top of the traffic box, maybe he would be lenient with them.

Bobby is the six-year-old pal of Traffic Officer August S. Cidado, stationed in the square. Each day when his pal goes to lunch, Bobby climbs into the box and directs the flow of traffic.

And Bobby is no mere amateur at this business of keeping truck drivers and motorists in good humor by sending them on their way. For three years, Bobby has received training, under Sergt. Thomas M. Sharry.

Bobby lives at 496 Columbia st., Somerville, and is a pupil in the third grade of the Otis S. Knapp school.

In the presence of her girl chum with whom she was vacationing, Miss Mary Paolino, 22, and pretty, of 75 Atwells ave., Providence, was kidnaped from Onset last night by two youths, one of them said to be a rejected suitor.

The girl's father, Joseph B. Paolino, swore out a complaint charging Attilo Manzanaro, 23, Georgetown University medical student, with the kidnaping and Albert Forcier, driver of the car, with being an accesory.

Descriptions of the two youths, both of whom live in Providence, and of the missing girl, were broadcast and a New England-wide search was started today.

About 9 o'clock last night, according to Miss Cora Antiello, her chum, the girls were told someone wished to speak to them in front of the cottage.

The Antiello girl said Manzanaro seized Miss Paolino and dragged her into the machine, which drove away.

Paolino said young Manzanaro was infatuated with his daughter but the girl had told him to keep away from her.

The missing girl is described as being 5 feet 5 inches tall, 120 pounds in weight, of medium complexion, with hazel eyes and brown hair, wearing a black dress, black shoes and stockings and black velvet hat.

PHANTOMS OF DRAMA IN FILMS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

SPEAKING OF GHOSTS, we should like to recommend that lively brand of inviting spectre which, it appears, has recently risen from the drama's shallow grave. If you have not already discovered it, the shades of a once prevalent legitimate theater may now be discovered toiling desperately in the equally fluent cinema.

• • •

LOCALLY, AT LEAST, the evidence is clear; you cannot slay the drama and bury it, and expect it to lie quiet. It simply isn't in nature's scheme of things. For echoes of the past are filling every movie fan's ear while the camera, also, does its duty. Important among the week's fare of good things in voice and picture is "The Fall Guy" at the Keith-Albees — good, brisk comedy wherever you catch it. RKO found it on the legitimate stage and adapted it to its own uses. It is not original Hollywood material. Playgoers already have enjoyed it in the flesh, as you might say.

Nicholas Young

MOVING A FULL block up Washington st., at Keith's new and magnificent memorial theater, you encounter another apparition of the speaking stage —"Little Accident." This comedy of careless romance set up a season's long run record at the Plymouth, stripping all rivals of any expected glory. Even its phantom at B. F. Keith's twinkles and shines, and upsets RKO calculations, for it will remain a second week. Keeping this ghost alive is no trouble at all.

BUT THE SPIRIT of the drama—the real drama of flesh and blood—does not fade with these casual references. Cyril Maude's "Grumpy," nation-wide favorite of the legitimate theatergoer, now holds the screen at the Metropolitan, while the Four Marx Brothers (themselves) are photographed and phonographed in "Animal Crackers" and exhibited simultaneously at the Olympia and Uptown theaters. These, perhaps, are even more convincing examples of how the ghosts of the drama are scrambling for a place on the screen. And this does not end the week's eerie story, for "Raffles," of ancient stage vintage, and "Holiday," of more recent gesture in playhouses where the voice is heard and players stalk the stage, are calling to multitudes from screens at the Modern, the Scollay and Loew's State.

A GLANCE at the week's film fare indicates a bold determination to keep in step with the legitimate drama. In any event, it should be clear to any eye that ghosts with a record make good partners in filmdom.

MISS HYAMS is ever so attractive in "Way Out West," coming to Loew's State, Monday.

RUTH TESTER

MISS TESTER is one of the many reasons why "The Second Little Show," coming to the Wilbur, Monday, has all the lure of its first edition. The new production is declared to be even better.

JOAN CRAWFORD

MISS CRAWFORD is simply resplendent in "Our Blushing Brides," at Loew's Orpheum.

MISS SIBLEY is one of many beautiful sights in the Petroff revue at Metropolitan.

SMART PEN IS SCALPEL TO PROBE FUN

Like an animated issue of a smart magazine, is the second edition of The Little Show, opening at the Wilbur on Monday night next. Gathered by those two youthful showmen, William A. Brady, Jr., and Dwight Deere Wiman, from the fancies, satires, and slap-sticks of the big city, the production has some of the better names of the classy revue world. For sketches, Newman Levy, Corey Ford, Morris Ryskind, Robert Emmet Sherwood, Marc Connelly and Howard Dietz have contributed ideas. For tunes and lyrics, the major supply is from Arthur Schwartz and Howard Dietz. The settings are by Joe Mielziner.

Since humor is the chief vitamin, Al Trahan, late of the vaudeville houses, is the featured player. With his erstwhile partner in fun, Lady Yukona Cameron, he will bear the brunt of the comedy. Featured in this same niche will be Ruth Tester, last seen in musical comedy here, and Joe Lewis, making his first Eastern appearance, as Trahan's chief assistant.

LEW AYRES TO BE STARRED IN FILM BASED ON NOVEL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 9—Lew Ayres' fan mail the last two weeks has surpassed that of any player on the Universal lot. With such concrete evidence that the dear public wants more of young Ayres, Carl Laemmle, Jr., set about to get some new vehicle for the lad.

JUNIOR BOUGHT YESTERDAY the screen rights to a novel called "Mississippi," written by Ben Lucien Burman for Ayres. A month hence is set for the production day depending, however, upon whether at that time Lew will have finished playing opposite Lupe Velez in "East is West."

Louella O. Parsons

I might add that Lew Ayres' popularity isn't entirely a matter of fan mail. I saw him wearing dark glasses at the Beach Club last Sunday. He was accompanied by Lola Lane and you have never seen more come hither glances cast in his direction by other girls who were at the beach. Some of them with attentive escorts, too.

CERTAINLY JOHN WAYNE makes his debut into the film business with plenty of good honest boosting from the Fox Company. Raoul Walsh spent a full hour telling me how well this youth does in "The Big Trail." A discovery, says Raoul Walsh. Winfield Sheehan apparently agrees with Raoul, for orders are now issued to give this boy every chance. He is to have the lead in a melodrama called "No Favors Asked." I am told it's one of the old smashing "mellers" on the order of "The Great Train Robbery." It is based on a story by Paul Leicester Ford, and is being put into scenario form by James Warren Relish. The older I grow, the more I believe people are really interested in these old melodramas.

I WILL SAY for Juliette Compton, she has been very patient. She came to Hollywood from England six months ago and in that time she hasn't had many breaks. She has contented herself with playing a part here and there. But patience is a virtue, or at least it has proven so in her case. Paramount has now signed her on a long term contract. Her first is "Morocco" with Josef von Sternberg directing. Speaking of "Morocco," I am told that Marlene Dietrick is such a knockout that everyone at Paramount studio begs to have a look at the rushes just to get a glimpse at this fascinating German lady.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: All of Santa Monica wondering when Allan Tomblin is going to accept James Kirkwood's challenge to take part in a swimming contest. Ann Harding dressed as if she might be on a marketing expedition, lunching at the Embassy with a party of friends. Gilda Grey entertaining a ringside party at Olsen's. Alice White fishing at Lake Arrowhead and bringing home the fish. Mary Nolan in a black dress and white fox fur visiting friends. Clarence Brown taking a little trip in his aeroplane to San Diego. Announcement of Richard Gallagher, Jr.'s arrival being made on a bar of music. "Thank your father, thank your mother, etc." Young Richard's mother, Pauline Mason, and his dad, "Skeets" Gallagher, putting the young man on exhibition. Ethelyn Claire celebrating at George Olsen's with a party before leaving for a stock engagement in the East.

ROCHESTER PAGES HOLLYWOOD to ask for special information about Claire Luce. Claire Luce is to appear, headed from Rochester and the whole town is watching her screen career. I suggest, however, before Rochester gets all excited over the young lady we wait until we see what she does in the movies. After all she is just a newcomer. Her first picture, "Luxury" will have Guthrie McClintock directing. That's a break for Miss Luce. Also it is a break for her that she has the support of two actors like Regis Toomey and H. B. Warner. "Luxury" is based on Edward Knoblock's play, "My Lady's Dress" and I know how many years it has been in possession of the Fox company, waiting for the right actress. The screen version has been written for her by Hope Loring. Maybe after this picture we can send Rochester a detailed account of the young lady.

FASHIONS FOR WOMEN TO BE SHOWN

The place is Loew's State, the time is Monday, and the occasion is the showing of a film that is certain to interest feminine Boston because it pictures "What's in Fashion" in women's clothes for fall. The apparel and accessories which will be shown are authentic, the type that the average woman can wear and know that she is dressed in good taste and good fashion.

Back of the making of this film is the internationally known organization of Amos Parrish & Co. This bureau makes the compiling of accurate fashion information a business. Scouts in Paris, observers of homecoming fashionables and people who visit smart restaurants and other gathering places of well-dressed people, are all concerned with the gathering and compiling of definite fashion trends.

The Parrish film, for example, will show definitely what the proper lengths are for skirts, what silhouettes are to be in vogue, what shapes in hats are brim full of chic, what type of accessories the Mrs. and Misses of fashion should choose.

Bewitching

LILLIAN ROTH

MISS ROTH adds the rollicking Marx Brothers in "Animal Crackers" (Olympia and Uptown).

ASTHECROW FLIES GOES EACH JEST

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WHY WORRY? Those irrepressible Marx brothers, Harpo, Chico and Groucho, have come again. Their "Animal Crackers," now being shown at the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown, is funnier than "The Cocoanuts." The new picture had the audience in almost continuous laughter when we saw it yesterday. One may call it a Marxian knockout.

WHAT NEED WE story when Harpo and Chico chase all over the lot, and Groucho can raise a mirthquake by a mere vocal inflection, or a grimace? Here we find Groucho getting new stuff out of the African jungle. His "lecture" is sure-fire, one of the high spots of the movie. The fourth brother, Zeppo, acts as his secretary. The Marxes are guests at a swanky home; a painting is stolen. Lillian Roth, a lassie with a great deal of "IT," furnishes the love thread. Social and other activities in the household become a mere merry-go-round of hilarity. Whenever the plot thins out, as often it does, the Marxians shine the more. This is their production, so why shouldn't they do what they wish? Nobody knows, and nobody cares; it's all for fun. And the tide is high, and everybody's happy.

Zeppo Marx

"Animal Crackers" is the musical extravaganza of the stage shorn of most of its music. But for all that is lacking, there is adequate recompense in the presence of more abundant Marxian humor. The brothers inject oceans of their wise cracks and their antics. They do it all so naturally that they delude you into thinking they're making it up as they go; apparently rambling on and on, and yet never failing to hit the target for all their slapsticking and rough-and-tumble mechanics.

HARPO TRIES his lute, and with such art that the audience is applauded his shadow off himself as he ended. He and Chico also perform at the piano, but with no effect other than the comic. They sucated. Their bridge game is a hit, a runner-up for Groucho's narrative of his jungle adventures. And there is a score of other Marxian "gags," mighty fresh and still able to pull the laughs.

• • •

MISS ROTH does well enough. Neither she nor any character outside Harpo, Groucho and Chico is called on to say or do very much. It is as well. For this is a family affair; the Marxes are the show. They make "Animal Crackers" a "wow" if you had rather laugh than be hot and bothered.

The picture is certain to jam the twin houses for the next two weeks.

TOLD HIS DAD WHAT TO DO

A versatile young man is Douglas Fairbanna, Jr., featured in "Little Accident" at the New B. F. Keith's for a second week.

In addition to ability as a screen and stage actor, "Young Doug," as he is known, is accomplished in painting and carving, has written poems, and recently took to writing magazine articles. In Paris he studied painting and sculpture for three years, and still pursues these arts as a hobby. He early started on a moving picture career through "hanging around" the studio of his famous father. Occasionally he would make a suggestion to his father or the director. When the suggestion was accepted, a check would be forthcoming.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

In addition to acting in pictures, he wrote the titles for two of his father's films. A costume designer of marked ability, he designed the costumes for his father's picture, "The Black Pirate."

EIGHTY TOES A-TWINKLE

Dancing versatility is one of the merits of the "Scollayettes," a troupe of eight, featured each week at the Scollay. This week will mark their 16th consecutive week at that theater, during which time they have danced an average of three to four different routines each week, totaling 55 distinct dances, which is said to be a record.

Each Thursday, while the girls are doing their current routine on the stage, they start rehearsing the following week's dances under the expert eye of Dave Gould, Public stage producer, and incidentally the producer of the dances in the "Second Little Show." The names of the girls are: Captain, Lucy Mikaila, Lorraine Budd, Frances Sherman, the Druse Sisters (Harriett and Betty), Mildred Bell, Geraldine Young and Mattie Lee Hale. Only two of the girls, the Druse sisters, are local.

"Frivolities" Opening Show for the Gayety

With 10 principals, "Frivolities" will open August 23 at the Gayety. The cast includes Georgia Sheldon, Charles Smith, Murray Leonard, and Rob Rogers, character man and juvenile. The feminine contingent is headed by Violet Buckley, Billie Holmes, Betty Joyce, Madeline La Verne, Lou Fink and Zara Lee.

KNOWS DANCE AND SONG

Gloria Foy, headlining at the Keith-Albee with Sam Critcherson and Alan Davis, is the offspring of a stage union. Her parents were the famous team of Foy and Clark. She was brought up in a convent, received no instruction in dancing, never heard any music but the organ, and never went to a theater until she left school.

When she decided to make a bid for the footlight fame she went at it wholeheartedly, and within six months after quitting school, she was a featured player on the Amsterdam Roof. She has played with Donald Brian and Skeets Gallagher, and with Joe Brown and Ethel Shutta.

Sam Critcherson another member of the trio, is the son of Emma Davis, prima donna, while Alan Davis, is also stage born, his parents being the team of Inez Macauley and Hal Davis.

Howard Box Office Will Open Monday

The Mutual burlesque season will get under way at the Old Howard beginning next Saturday matinee. The show will be "Speed Girls," with Fred Binder and Mike Sacks. The box office will open next Monday for the advance sale of tickets. Others with the "Speed Girls" include Adeline Pevlos, Alice DeVoe, Alice Kennedy and Frances Farr.

HER ACCENT IS FALSE CLUE

An American girl whose accent, one of the stage, gives one the impression she is a native of the British Isles, plays the leading female romantic role in "Grumpy" at the Metropolitan. The girl is Frances Dade. Miss Dade gained her acting experience on the stage. She was brought to Hollywood by Samuel Goldwyn to appear with Ronald Colman and Kay Francis. When Cyril Maude was asked to choose his own leading woman he at once picked her. Mr. Maude created the role of "Grumpy" in 1913. Since that time he has played the part 1300 times on the speaking stage in all the English-speaking countries of the world.

Frances Dade

ONLY WOMEN IN CAST

The Messrs. Shubert have purchased a number of London successes with which to supplement the American, French and Italian plays they purpose producing this year. The best of these works will be seen at the Plymouth as part of the subscription series of the Professional Players.

One of the London plays that will be included in the London series is H. M. Harwood's "The Man in Possession." The cast will be headed by Leslie Banks and Isabel Jeans, famous English players.

Another notable purchase by the Messrs. Shubert is "Nine Till Six," by Aimee and Philip Stuart. The cast, which exceeds 30, is made up entirely of women. An all-English company is being brought over for this novel comedy.

"Holiday" Featured on Program at Modern

"Holiday" is being screened at the Modern. It is the screen version of the play by the same name and boasts of a great cast headed by Ann Harding, who is supported by Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Robert Ames and Hedda Hopper.

BEN HUR RIDES ONCE MORE

"Call of the Circus" tops the double bill at the Park for the week which started yesterday. In it appear those two great favorites of the silent screen, Francis X. Bushman and Ethel Clayton. The picture has action and thrills. One is a chariot race.

"Big Ranch" is the secondary film. In the cast are Buffalo Bill, Jr., Yakima Canutt, Wally Wales, Pewee Holmes, Robert Walker, Ben Corbett, Fern Emmett and Betty Baker. The wildest sort of riding on the Western plains characterizes the picture, with much romance woven in. Beautiful scenic effects give one the feeling of being out in the great wide open spaces.

Bowdoin Sq.

The Bowdoin Square will present next week Norma Shearer in "Let Us Be Gay." The associate star is Marie Dressler. Another offering will be "Bride of the Regiment," "Gems of M-G-M" is another feature, Vaudeville, too, will hold forth.

BOSTON FIRE FIGHTERS REHEARSE FOR DEBUT AS MUSICIANS

WHETHER YOU KNEW IT BEFORE OR NOT, the Boston Fire Department has a band, as this bass drum testifies. George McLaughlin, son of Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin, is shown attempting to pound a soulful air out of the instrument. The band will make its debut on Boston Day, September 17.

FIRE FIGHTERS HAVE BAND

The Boston Firemen's Band

Unknown to the general public, this new organization of 145 men has been practicing for eight weeks. It will make its debut on Boston Day, September 17.

The chief purpose of the organization is to obtain funds for families of firemen who lose their lives fighting fires.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin cooperated with Mayor Curley in the organization of the band.

Commissioner McLaughlin gives full credit to the players, themselves, but they point out that the commissioner paid for their instruments, music and instruction.

Commissioner McLaughlin, it appears, studied at the New England Conservatory of Music. He thus naturally hit upon the idea of a band to raise a benefit fund for firemen, which should be, as he expressed it, another contribution to the achievements of the administration of Mayor Curley.

"I found there was no medium by which to raise funds for the benefit of families of firemen killed in performance of duty, and it seemed to me that a band of such calibre would be just the thing," he said.

"The public sees the fireman only when fires occur and sometimes the people do not stop to realize fully the services given by these men, and the sacrifice of those who pay with their lives for their devotion to duty.

"I want to present the firemen to the public as human beings with high ideals, and whatever success is made by the men or me I am sure we will be amply repaid if at some future date we are able to alleviate the sorrow of some fireman's bereaved family."

Practice is being held at the Roxbury fire station and the East Armory under Peritonio Sordillo, assistant director of music in the public schools, and six other instructors.

COSMOPOLITAN OFFERS TREAT

New York, Aug. 9 (INS)—John Masefield, poet laureate of England, has just completed a narrative in verse which will appear for the first time in the Septem r issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, Ray Long, editor, announced today.

"The Wanderer," as it is called, will subsequently be printed in book form, the first edition of which will be presented only to King George and Q'ueen Mary.

Faithful always to the sea, the bard has sung of the ship he mentioned in "The Fair Wanderer."

Three lines from "The Wanderer" may be compared to the line in "Sea Fever" by which he is best known in America:

"I must go down to the sea again, to the lonely sea and the sky."

Young Rancher Held as Masked Terror

Wheatland, Wyo., Aug. 9 (AP)—Charles Adams, young rancher, today was in custody of officers who said he had admitted being the masked horseman sought for terrorizing the countryside recently.

A comparison of fingerprints on a stern warning ranchers to leave the country and on letters Adams gave officers to investigate led to the arrest.

Antlered Doe Gets Hunter in Trouble

San Jose Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Leslie L. McClay learned about females from her. McClay brought down a 150-pound black-tailed deer with 12-inch antlers a 7-inch spread and two points. He is now under arrest for shooting a doe, lured into the clutches of a game warden by an antlered freak.

Declares Mayor Curley's Articles Literary Treat

Editor Boston American:

Those who have read the articles of Mayor Curley, published in the Boston Evening American, can mark them as lucid, clean-cut and suggestive on many vital points.

In talking with a representative Unitarian minister, we both went over in conversation some of the topics which these articles presented. We both agreed that they were timely in their import and would fit in well as discourses from a modern pulpit.

We were glad to note that Mayor Curley has a wider vision than some mayors. Some of the subjects he has handled show that he is thinking of world-wide problems and making them interesting for further investigation.

Mayor Curley is a more popular man than ever before and has certainly proven that he knows how to consider the interests of classes and races. We are glad to read these articles and congratulate the Boston American in giving the public this literary treat.

Rosenwald Fund Aids as Mayor Curley Urges

Editor Boston American

Along with what Mayor Curley said in one of his articles in your paper which I have read with great pleasure, may I add that the Julius Rosenwald Fund of $30,000,000 helped 4729 Negro schools in 818 counties in 14 Southern states in 1928.

This is a practical illustration of what the mayor urged in the article referred to above.

HENRY T. OLLSEN.

Col. Knabenshue Thanks American for C. M. T. C. Aid

Editor Boston American:

I desire to express my appreciation of the courtesy which the Boston Evening American has extended the Camp Devens press bureau in contributing so generously to the publicity given the Citizens' Military Training Camp this year.

In our national defense program it is of extreme importance that the American public be informed of the progress and accomplishments of the young citizens while in the training camps. Any publicity accorded us with this end in view is a vital factor in the upbuilding of patriotism and citizenship.

Whatever success the Camp Devens press bureau has achieved is due wholly to the interested cooperation of the Boston Evening American and the other public-spirited newspapers of New England.

Very sincerely yours,
F. G. KNABENSHUE,
Colonel U. S. Army, Commanding

Essex Institute Thanks American

Editor Boston American

Thank you for all your courtesy and for your generosity in giving space in your excellent paper to stories in connection with the series of garden parties which the Institute gave recently.

We shall be happy to reciprocate if we can serve you.

Offer Theater Free for Benefit Concerts

Editor Boston American.

Mrs. Jewett and the members of the board of trustees of The Repertory Theater desire me to congratulate you on the tenor of the initial article by His Honor, Mayor Curley. The best way to settle any serious problem is first to understand it, and the mayor's analyses of the present economic situation will be most illuminating.

Carrying out the ideals of the late Henry Jewett makes her founder of the Repertory Theater to make it a truly civic institution, always responsible to the needs of the people. I am authorized to extend to the American the free use of The Theater or Repertory Hall for a series of public concerts or entertainments, the proceeds of which may be used in a practical way to help some of the many deserving cases that have come as a result of the present unemployment condition. The Welfare Department of the city, as you know, is working far beyond its capacity to meet demands.

As a step from the Musicians Union may be interested in cooperating as they have for the series of garden parties which is annually given the Citizens' Military Training Camp this year.

The best way to settle any serious problem is first to understand it, and the mayor's analyses of the present economic situation will be most illuminating.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Greater Boston has lost another of its finest in the wanton killing of Officer Joseph P. O'Brien.

In these times of young desperadoes why doesn't the head of the police department issue an order to the effect that officers, when searching or questioning suspicious characters draw their guns before beginning the searching or questioning?

This may seem a foolish precaution in investigating these young boy-criminals but numerous cases have borne out the fact that many a courageous policeman has met an untimely end by acting too much trust, or under-estimating "mere boys" whom he has attempted to investigate or arrest.

Why sacrifice good policemen for murderous criminals when a policeman can, by first drawing their guns, prevent their own murder.

ARMY MAN

Objects to British Rum Reformers in U. S.

Editor Boston American

Last Monday I heard the commander of the R-100 make an address before the Canadian Club at Montreal, Canada. At that time he stated that the men who brought that giant dirigible safely overseas received their daily ration of rum and whiskey and soda. His remarks on this point were greeted with loud applause—thus tending to show that Canadian sentiment is decidedly wet.

It is news to me as a peculiar piece of business when certain British and pro-British reform societies in this country and people from one American community to another advocate total abstinence and demanding prohibition of all alcoholic liquors, regardless of alcoholic content while Britain rations out rum to its citizens. In these United States we have prohibition now notched in our Constitution.

Why don't British and pro-British reformers devote their time to agitating and advocating prohibition in Britain? Have they been gently coaxed out of Canada and Britain so that poor only [illegible] can sip rum in the United States? Some of them, at least, appear to spend their time down here. Apparently the hand to mouth existence in a boss white slave ring reformer appeals strongly to them when Britain offers the temperance life.

I have met the average drunkard, but in all my experience I have never found a confirmed rum-runner. I have had the experience a feeling of alarm when British and U. S. reformers attempt to force America in the matter of prohibition of milder alcoholic drinks.

E. R. GOODWIN,
Waterboro, Me.

Ask Retention of South End Postoffice

Editor Boston American

The South End postoffice should not be discontinued.

It serves a necessary purpose. The community needs it, just as much as no other communities throughout Boston where branch postoffices are located.

The South End cannot do without it.

To remove it would incommode the people who have to go as much farther to mail out-of-town letters or other communications.

PROCLAMATION OFFERS HAND ACROSS SEA!

Washington Monument,
Eighth of August, 1930.

To Everybody, Everywhere—

Greetings! How's Tricks? Long time no see. In behalf of International Friendship, I, Horace Frisby, Leader of Men, have thought up a plan whereby I will positively exchange Snap Shots, taken with my Cyclops No. 3 Handy Pocket Camera with the peoples across the sea. This will give others a chance to see, and love, Congressman Frisby informally, and encourage that respect for America which I, for one, am anxious and willing to put over in a Big Way. Some of the snap shots will show the People's Pal at play—wearing the ladies' hats, or dressed like a cowboy or an Indian. Other pictures (perhaps a flashlight or two!) will show Mr. Frisby in reflective mood—wearing his dressing gown, slippers and smoking a pipe as he gazes into the fireplace, book in hand. Just the thing for your Den or Memory Book! Come, King George! Who will be the first to exchange pictures with the Monarch of Democracy?

HORACE B. FRISBY,
Congressman-at-Large.

Raquel Married to Parker and Sails on Same Ship to America

Chapter 63

At ten o'clock on a morning in midsummer, the liner Marathon, flying an American flag, had parted the waters of an ocean that flaunted liquid jade and sapphire amies in the face of an ardent sun. Only a few minutes before the ship had crossed the imaginary line that separates the domain of waters adjoining a country from the free republic of the open sea.

Shortly thereafter, Capt. Herbert Hardy, urbane skipper of the Marathon and inveterate fomenter of maritime romance, opened the ship's log and placed a pen near an ink-well so that it would be handy for use. He wore the most immaculate and the newest of his uniforms, and the broadest and happiest of his smiles.

In a few minutes there was the sound of voices outside on the bridge. The captain hurried to the door of his quarters to receive a young woman in a swirl of filmy gray. He caught the faint perfume of the lilies-of-the-valley that touched the creamy pallor of her cheek.

"Positively the most beautiful piece of God's handiwork I have ever seen," Capt. Hardy said to himself, noticing how the sable smoke-cloud of the young woman's hair made its escape from her tight little gray turban.

And her eyes! Like a patch of black night at sea, with flecks of phosphorus where the ship cut the waves.

Captain Eager
Enjoys the Wedding

The young woman was closely followed by a well-set-up man in a blue serge suit and a look in his eyes that must make the sun hide for shame at the weakness of its shining.

He motioned two officers of the ship waiting on the bridge into his quarters. They answered with the alacrity of men who find joy in their task.

Five minutes later Capt. Hardy bent to take the privilege of his office from the lips of the young woman in gray.

"Mrs. Gerald Parker," he said in his ringing voice that floated out and pleasantly reached the ears of a seaman at the wheel of the ship, "I wish you a long life, and a happy one."

"Jerry," he said, turning to the young man in the blue serge suit, "you look like a sure cure for bachelors."

Raquel Rojos signed her name in the book that was the ship's log: "Raquel Rojos Parker."

This man with the gray-green eyes, the grave lips, the straight shoulders that inclined toward her like two solid rocks upon which she could rest her weary head, was her husband.

The hunger of his kiss'

* * *

Raquel stirred uneasily. Her black eyes opened wide. In that instant she was fully awake, her brain clear, her body tingling. It was thus she had been greeting the day with zest, with an exquisite joy in being alive.

Jerry was pushing the sable cloud of her hair back from her brow with just that touch of man-tenderness that she liked.

"Raquel," he said, "wake up, dear. In half an hour we'll be passing the statue of Liberty."

"But I'm no longer free," she twitted him.

"The deuce you're not." He ruffled her hair on the pillow. "I haven't tried taxiing any orders yet. I know better. But here's one now. We're going straight from the ship to the City Hall. Then to the Little Church around the Corner."

"But Jerry, we're just as much man and wife as we ever can be."

"I know. That's why another little wedding won't do us any harm. Put on your wedding gown, Mrs. Parker, and get ready to be double dyed. We'll stop on the way and get the titles. I want you to look exactly as you did that morning when the skipper kissed the bride."

New York, shining towers reaching to touch the golden glory of the sun.

Yesterday, at night, those towers were dark shadows reaching for the moon. Not yesterday. Two years of yesterdays.

The hum of the city came to her like a muted melody. This was home. Homeland.

Raquel wondered if, on their way uptown from the dim altar where, for the second time, she plighted herself to Jerry, they would pass Chez Alphonse.

No. They were traveling another route. Jerry took care that they should. Nothing of her past was to intrude itself upon this perfect hour of their homecoming.

The Marry-Go-Round

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

The Sweet and Low-Down

IN THE average summer romance, a woman never knows what a man suspects about her, and a man never even suspects what a woman knows about him.

The acute pain a man endures, when he hears his wife trying to tell his favorite joke, is nothing to the agony a woman suffers, when she listens to her husband trying to describe the clothes another woman had on.

Wisdom is the salve, philosophy the balm, and time the anesthetic which will cure the worst pangs of love.

A woman may be as old as she looks—but she is usually YOUNG in inverse ratio to the ages of the men who LOOK at her. If St. Peter is really an old gentleman, no girl over 17 need hope to get into heaven.

Up to 35, the average man shudders at the thought of matrimony as a dog shudders at the sight of a leash.

To fall deeply and desperately in love is to increase your capacity for happiness—and, also, to minimize your chance of ever getting it.

Why is "man-hater" always pictured as a sour-faced spinster surrounded by cats? Any woman who admires the calm self-assurance, the nocturnal roving habits, and the self-indulgent, comfort-loving qualities of the cat, cannot entirely hate MEN.

Just when a man has made up his mind to devote the rest of his life to one woman, another girl happens along and intercepts him.

The Bachelor's Toast: Here's to Love! May it always be like a cigarette—easy to light, pleasant while it lasts, and quite dead when it is over!

Believes Wheat May Advance Much Higher

John Melady, a Leading Operator, Discusses Farm Situation

—By JULIUS G. BERENS—

New York, Aug. 9—Wheat, corn, and the other grains have assumed the center of the financial stage.

Spectacular market action has concentrated public attention on the seemingly vital change occurring in their prices.

Seeking an explanation of the prevailing situation, I interviewed John Melady, one of the world's largest operators in grains.

He feels that it is not at all improbable that wheat may sell considerably higher.

* * *

Mr. Melady's contacts spread throughout the grain world, with which he has been intimately affiliated for over 30 years. His financial associations also include senior partnership in the Stock Exchange firm bearing his name.

"I had been short of wheat up to Saturday," said Mr. Melady—he talks in "millions," meaning bushels.

"With a slight loss against me," he continued. "I determined that the situation, which previously had been frightfully bearish, had changed. So I investigated, seeking information from the best authorities here, in Canada, and in Europe.

"The domestic situation is well known. The governmental reports, perhaps slightly exaggerated, indicate plainly that serious damage has been done to the feeding crops, which would necessitate the feeding of wheat. The Canadian situation is such that a substantial reduction in its prospective wheat crop is indicated.

"My European advices are distinctly bullish on our wheat. Europe's wheat has been destroyed in great quantities, and it is almost certain that the European countries will be buying heavily of our wheat. From all accounts, European crops are being affected by wet harvest, indicating that they will be delayed for millers' use.

"The European situation is somewhat confused by continued free offering of wheat by Russia at much lower than American prices. But past experience has proven that Russia's offers do not mean very much shipping. Russian claims in the past have proved very unreliable, both with regard to the quantity they have or what they actually will ship. Their offerings, however, receive widespread advertising which satisfies them in their desire to make demonstrations.

"It is too early, of course, to say much of the Argentine and Australian crops.

"A good deal depends upon Europe's financial ability to acquire large supplies of wheat. It is my opinion that, owing to the financial resources, Europe would be a tremendous buyer of our wheat. But the foreign exchange dealers are still impoverished as a result of the last big collapse of the wheat market.

"If Europe were able to buy supplies ahead what would be much higher. As it is they are forced to take their supplies on a hand-to-mouth basis. I believe Europe's capacity to absorb our surplus wheat would aggregate about 200,000,000 bushels, which would make a goodly dent in our excess.

"I firmly believe that cash wheat under $1 cannot be considered dear. I know that some of the heaviest bearish bears in Chicago are advising against selling wheat short."

* * *

As to the general effect of the sensational price recovery in grains, Mr. Melady takes an optimistic view. The net result will be to bring about a more favorable and logical condition in the grain producing markets and eventually prove stimulating to the entire business situation, he believes.

* * *

The regular B. C. Forbes column will be continued on the return of Mr. Forbes from Europe. Watch for it later part of the month.

Sees North Western Corn Unaffected

Corn, on the whole, in the Northwestern territory, still has good prospects, according to H. W. Beyers, vice-president of Chicago & Northwestern Railway, in charge of traffic.

Mr. Beyers said:

"There are some bad spots in Iowa, but they are mostly in southeastern and southwestern sections and south of our railroad, which will therefore not be so directly affected.

"The worst corn conditions in Nebraska are also south of our line. We have some bad spots on our line in South Dakota, which is not, however, a major corn-producing state."

Nitrate Monopoly Plan Watched Here

Washington, Aug. 9—Officials here are following closely the progress of discussions in Berlin aimed at setting up a monopoly of nitrate production, it was learned today.

This country imports about one-fourth of the nitrate output, essential in fertilizer manufacture. Prices here are considered to turn on the success or failure of the Berlin conference. Stabilization of prices at the present level or slightly higher is anticipated if the conference succeeds.

* * *

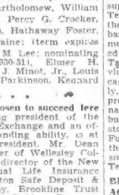
Summer visitors head for the Cape and Islands as one of the big sights of their trip to the Bay State. It is hoped that in the not distant future, in great quantities, and it is almost certain that the European countries will be buying heavily of our wheat. From all accounts, European crops are being affected by wet harvest, indicating that they will be delayed for millers' use.



Capt. Eugene O'Donnell

"The European situation is somewhat confused by continued free offering of wheat by Russia at much lower than American prices. But past experience has proven that Russia's offers do not mean very much shipping. Russian claims in the past have proved very unreliable, both with regard to the quantity they have or what they actually will ship. "A good deal depends upon Europe's financial ability to acquire large supplies of wheat. It is my opinion that, owing to the financial resources, Europe would be a tremendous buyer of our wheat. But the foreign exchange dealers are still impoverished as a result of the last big collapse of the wheat market.

"If Europe were able to buy supplies ahead what would be much higher. As it is they are forced to take their supplies on a hand-to-mouth basis. I believe Europe's capacity to absorb our surplus wheat would aggregate about 200,000,000 bushels, which would make a goodly dent in our excess.

"I firmly believe that cash wheat under $1 cannot be considered dear. I know that some of the heaviest bearish bears in Chicago are advising against selling wheat short."

As to the general effect of the sensational price recovery in grains, Mr. Melady takes an optimistic view. The net result will be to bring about a more favorable and logical condition in the grain producing markets and eventually prove stimulating to the entire business situation, he believes.

The regular B. C. Forbes column will be continued on the return of Mr. Forbes from Europe. Watch for it later part of the month.

Sees North Western Corn Unaffected

Corn, on the whole, in the Northwestern territory, still has good prospects, according to H. W. Beyers, vice-president of Chicago & Northwestern Railway, in charge of traffic.

Mr. Beyers said:

"There are some bad spots in Iowa, but they are mostly in southeastern and southwestern sections and south of our railroad, which will therefore not be so directly affected.

"The worst corn conditions in Nebraska are also south of our line. We have some bad spots on our line in South Dakota, which is not, however, a major corn-producing state."

Nitrate Monopoly Plan Watched Here

Washington, Aug. 9—Officials here are following closely the progress of discussions in Berlin aimed at setting up a monopoly of nitrate production, it was learned today.

This country imports about one-fourth of the nitrate output, essential in fertilizer manufacture. Prices here are considered to turn on the success or failure of the Berlin conference. Stabilization of prices at the present level or slightly higher is anticipated if the conference succeeds.

Today's News in Wall Street

Thin markets exist for numerous issues, with many wide spreads between bid and asked prices. As a result, comparatively wide fluctuations are sometimes recorded on a light volume of trading if the market becomes more lively, with buying and selling in about equal volume, specialists would have little difficulty in arranging their books. As it is lately, some of them do not know all the time just where they are standing.

CUTTEN GROUP IS IN GRAIN MARKET

It is understood that Arthur Cutten and other interests have unified their operations to the grain market.

TELEPHONE STOCK WELL SUPPORTED

DESPITE the unsettlement in the general list, good scale down support was extended to American Telephone & Telegraph. Most of the buying came from important banking interests, as well as investment institutions who were attracted by the high yield on the stock. Talking into consideration the valuable rights offered to American Telephone stockholders annually, the return to shareholders approximates 8 per cent. It is only natural therefore that important buying should develop in this stock during reactionary periods. Furthermore, the earning record of the company, which shows consistent improvement, also makes Telephone attractive.

BEAR GROUPS AGGRESSIVE

Emboldened by the failure of the market to stage more than feeble rallies, several recently organized bear cliques have become more aggressive in their market operations. Their activities have been principally centered in the utilities and rails. Bearish activities in the rails are based on the disappointing earning statements which indicate that several of the large roads will adjust their dividends later in the year. Pressure against utilities was attributed to the belief that further rate reductions are in prospect in other sections of the country, as well as on the belief that this group would again come under the scrutiny of Congress later in the year.

WARNER OFFICIALS GIVEN CENSURE

Failure of officials of Warner Bros. to issue an explanatory statement when they omitted dividend action on the common stock was severely criticized in several important quarters.

SELLING WAVE IN GILLETTE

Waves of selling have come into Gillette this week, and the stock at times has been dependent upon support from the shorts who have been covering part of their obligations. Rumors are heard that the company has been accumulating some of its stock in the open market, but, if that is correct, the buying must have been on a scale down, which would not be unusual.

GRIGSBY GRUNOW DEMAND STUDIED

Various explanations have been made for the recent activity which has appeared in Grigsby Grunow. Probably the best reason for the buying is the advance in the stock of Majestic Household Utilities recently. Grigsby Grunow owns about 125,000 of the 500,000 shares of the Majestic company, and the advance in the latter naturally improved the investment position of Grigsby. Majestic is said to have prospects of becoming an important factor in the electric refrigerator business.

RATIO ON CON. GAS STILL HIGH

Important liquidation has been reported in Consolidated Gas due to the high dividend-earnings ratio at which the stock is still selling. At present prices the stock is selling at 20 times the current year's earnings and on a yield of approximately 4 per cent. This ratio is considered unattractive to purely investment interests. Furthermore, the intense political interest in public utilities in New York at the present time naturally discourages speculative activities, with the result that steady liquidation has been noticeable in Consolidated Gas.

OUTLOOK FOR CAN COMPANIES

Considerable difference of opinion exists on the outlook for can companies in last half. While the first six months were satisfactory, there is some fear that the lead wave may affect earnings for latter half.

It is possible tomato and corn crops will be reduced, which would curtail demand for cans The pea crop prospects have been harvested and buying of cans for it has been good. Some market interests are watching drought reports for an intimation of probable influence on demand for can manufacturers. Profitaking in both American and Continental Can has been conducted by conservative interests inclined to await developments.

JULY RAIL EARNINGS WILL BE UNFAVORABLE

Railroad earnings in July were unfavorable, and reports when published are not likely to make a satisfactory showing, particularly certain carriers. No improvement took place in loadings during the month.

Damage to crops will tend to reduce grain movement, but some grain may be taken from storage and removed to markets. Therefore a loss in tonnage may be offset to some extent.

DROUGHT TO AFFECT MARKET LATER

It is possible the drought may become more of a market factor in future, according to conservative opinion. Reduction of crops as well as loss of stock will have some influence in agricultural sections affected by the heat.

Naturally, if crop damage continues, grain prices will be strengthened. Nevertheless, it is as yet difficult to state that the higher quotations will offset the farmers' losses in other directions. The situation is being watched more closely each day.

WHEAT RISE CAUSES BUYING IN BAKERS

Quiet buying has been coming into some of the baking shares on the advance in wheat. The point is made that higher prices for wheat will curtail outside price competition in bread and other baking products from small bakers. Reports from leading users of wheat were good buyers of their flour requirements in recent months.

WHO IS IT HOLDS WARNER CONTROL?

Decline in Warner Bros. to a new low as a result of numerous unanswered queries as to who holds control of the company. Reorganization plans have been twice present levels have been recovering their stock in the break, it is reasonable that control is in the market.

GENERAL MOTORS YIELD NOW 6.8 PER CENT

Setback in General Motors impressive, with yield to 6.8 per cent, while speculative interests were inclined to the view that this issue will yet prove a leader of the next endeavor to stimulate the market on the upside.

CASE THRESHING BUYING IS GOOD.

The break in Case Threshing brought the stock close to levels at which it is said to attract the banking sponsors on the last recession. Recently the stock has been under manipulation, but the buying-grade buying is for the account of people satisfied with its long-term prospects.

STEEL DIVIDEND AND INDEPENDENTS

Steel common's sharp break inspired nervousness over dividends in the trade, but it is fully recognized that U. S. Steel's payment is safe, but some of the independents may have difficulty in covering payments, particularly if the third quarter proves very unprofitable.

BUILDING FOR MONTH MAKES UPWARD MOVE

Washington, Aug. 9—For the first time since 1927 the volume of construction performed during July, as indicated by last month's shipments of basic construction materials, exceeded that of June, showing a gain of 8 points to Index Number 199, according to statistical analysis just completed by the Associated General Contractors of America.

The July 1930 volume, however, was 8 3-5 per cent below the July, 1929, figure, but 11 3-7 per cent below the comparative Index number of 175 for 1928.

In commenting on the analysis, Edward J. Harding, assistant general manager of the association, pointed out that the July volume more closely approximated that of the corresponding month last year than has that of any month of the current year since March. A continuation of this trend during the next four months, he said, could very nearly offset the decrease of 10 per cent in the total volume reported for the first half of the year.

The association's analysis shows that long term state and municipal bond issues, as reported by The Bond Buyer, averaged $123,000,000 a month during the first half of the year as compared with $116,000,000 per month for the corresponding period of 1929, and that concrete surface pavement awards totaled 82,821,000 square yards, or an increase of 13 per cent as compared with first six months of 1929. The average of construction costs in the principal construction centers in July was three points less than the cost index figure for the same month a year ago, standing at index number 198, the association reports.

STEEL ORDERS SHOW GAIN

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. increased 53,991 tons in July to a total of 4,022,055 tons on July 31.

The June decrease was 91,183 tons.

The backlog on June 30 was 3,968,064 tons, on May 31 unfilled orders aggregated 4,059,227 tons.

On April 30 the total unfilled tonnage was 4,154,229 tons, and on July 31, 1929, unfilled orders amounted to 4,088,177 tons.

Grains Are Lower After Early Rise

Chicago, Aug. 9—Grain values tumbled quickly today after scoring some initial gains. The upturns were associated with an unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool, with continued drought and heat further damaging the corn crop. General selling broadened and both wheat and corn soon went well below yesterday's finish. Opening at ¾-2¼c. gain, wheat later showed nearly 4c. break as compared with early top figures. Corn started ¼-1¾c. up, and later underwent 3¼c. setback.

Cotton Has a Rally After New Lows Are Established

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—After making new low records under a continuation of yesterday's selling movement, cotton turned steadily today on trade buying and covering. The new October sold up from 12.20 to 12.37 and March from 12.65 to 12.83 and the close was steady at net advances of 1 to 7 points.

Improvement for Employment Noted

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Adverse trade factors of some months' standing, combined with the slackening of business characteristics of the summer season to bring unemployment in July to an unusually high level, a survey by Standard Statistics Co. says. Improvement was noted, however, in clothing and textile industries, on the railroads and in the shipping trade.

NEWS OF Trends of the Day MAJOR New York List MARKETS

Stocks Stage Rally in Final Period After New Setback

New York, Aug. 9—Active issues staged a rally in the final period of today's short session of the New York Stock Exchange, after encountering a new setback in the first period of trading.

All sections of the market participated in the rally, which recovered a part of the early losses, but left important shares generally at lower price levels.

MOST ACTIVE STOCKS

Trading was more active than yesterday by a considerable margin. Among the most active issues Radio Corp., Electric Power & Light, Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Electric and Yellow Truck all finished fractionally above Friday's close.

American Telephone jumped over 3 points. Recessions of a point or more showed at the finish among such active issues as Warner Bros., U. S. Steel, United Aircraft and Transmerica, while Vanadium sagged over 2.

Stocks generally sold off 1 to 6 points during the first hour. The rally thereafter carried several issues up 1 to 3 points above last night's close, but some gains were cut down in the last few minutes, and a long list of issues finished depressed 1 to 5 points under yesterday's final prices.

The Chain was the erratic performer, selling off 6¼, rallying to show a gain of 1¾, then reacting again. American Telephone showed strong feature as it got up more than 3 points.

Johns Manville, Westinghouse, Atchison, Bethlehem, Radio General Electric, and Du Pont were among shares showing temporary gains of about 1 to 2 points.

MARKET TURNS HEAVY

In the late dealings, Vanadium, Worthington, North American, Warner Bros., United Aircraft and Houston Oil showed losses of 2 to more than 3 points. Diamond Match dropped 5. U. S. Steel sold off more than a point.

Radio and General Electric closed steady, and a sprinkling of shares showed gains of 1 to 2 points at the finish, including American Water Works, Foster, Wheeling and Union Pacific.

Price declines came on a relatively large volume of trading during the first half of the two-hour session as further selling entered the market, but the bears soon began to cover actively and numerous issues showed equal net gains.

The technical rally failed to hold, however, and the market turned heavy again in the late dealings.

United States Steel closed $1.50 lower. There were losses of $2 to $3 in Vanadium Steel, Columbian Carbon, Houston Oil, New York Central, North American, Warner Brothers Pictures, Case, Allis-Chalmers and United Aircraft.

Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Foster Wheeler and American Waterworks gained $1 to $2.

SALES ARE LARGE

Total sales were 1,508,400 shares, the largest for a Saturday since late June.

The unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation on July 31, 1930, was 4,904,655 tons, an increase of 53,991 tons compared with that of June 30, 1930.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. has received order for 18 large gas engines and this business will necessitate the immediate return to work of several hundred men.

Atlantic Refining Co. declared usual extra dividend of 20 cents and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, both payable Sept. 15 to stock of record Aug. 21.

The next statement of Loew's, Inc., to appear within a week or two, will cover the 12 weeks ending June 6. The figures will show the management over the results for the June 2, 1929, period, but the gain will naturally not be at all comparable to the increase of 60 per cent and 50 per cent respectively for the two previous fiscal periods, viz., the 16 weeks ended March 14 last and the 12 weeks ending Nov. 23, 1929. The balance per common share will be substantially greater than the 22c per share realized for the June 2, 1929, period.

For the 28 weeks ended March 14 Loew's profit after charges, $6,243,584, was equivalent after preferred dividends to $5.49 a share on 1,372,000 shares of common stock. In the 12-week periods ended June 2 and Aug. 31 of last year the per-share balances were, respectively, $2.02 and $2.42 a share.

The company needs only to keep abreast of last year's showing to reach its estimate of $10 a share, though the major proportion of earning power will probably prove to have been seen in the spring period.

Ability of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. to advance its second quarter earnings beyond those of the first period, while other leading steel manufacturers were reporting decreases, was due almost entirely to the great strength of the pipe market the last two months.

Earnings of $2.17 a common share for the quarter ended June 30 were reported after the company's usual practice of marking down a greater amount for plant depreciation than many other companies. This addition to net earnings of $1.92 for the first period brought first half year earnings to $4.09 which is ample of dividend requirements for the entire year.

U. S. Steel to Give Stock and Money for Oil Well

Payment of $6,865,800 in cash and 64,992 shares of common stock will be made by the U. S. Steel Corporation for the business of Oil Well Supply Co. in the event the transaction is approved by stockholders of both companies, Benjamin F. Harris, president of Oil Well Supply, stated.

U. S. Steel has until August 24 to exercise its option, Mr. Harris said.

Based on the current market prices for U. S. Steel common, the purchase price for Oil Well Supply would be approximately $17,500,000. The company has 389,972 shares of stock outstanding, so that the 64,992 shares of U. S. Steel common would be equivalent to a basis of one share of the latter for six shares of Oil Well Supply. Around the current price for Steel common, this would place a value slightly more than $27 per share for Oil Well Supply.

United States Steel will assume all the debts of Oil Well Supply with the exception of $600,000 of 6 per cent debentures of the Wilson-Snyder Manufacturing Corp., a subsidiary. Total par value of the debentures and preferred stock of Oil Well Supply is equal to the amount of cash to be paid in the transaction.

The preferred issue of Oil Well Supply is callable at $105 and the Wilson-Snyder debentures at 103. In the event that these issues should be called, the value of the common stock would be reduced by $1.61 per share to pay the premiums on the retirement of the issues.

At the option of U. S. Steel the $6,865,800 portion of the payment may be made in the corporation's common stock rated at its closing price two days preceding the date of closing of the transaction. The option provides that in the event of the approval by Oil Well stockholders and U. S. Steel, the deal will be consummated by September 30.

A special meeting of Oil Well Supply shareholders has been called for Sept. 9 to ratify the transaction and to approve a change in the name of the company to its Pittsburgh United Corp. This would permit the Steel Corp. to make use of the well known trade name of Oil Well Supply Co. Shareholders of record Aug. 25 will be entitled to vote at the meeting.

Upon completion of the sale, the company will have as its sole assets, the shares of common stock of U. S. Steel and the cash specified or its equivalent in stock. It will have no indebtedness other than the 6 per cent Wilson Snyder debentures, which will be redeemed shortly after completion of the transaction.

Thatcher Earnings for Half $321,253

New York, Aug. 9—Thatcher Manufacturing Co. reports for six months ended June 30 net of $321,253 after depreciation, federal taxes, royalties, losses, etc., equivalent after dividend requirements on $3.50 no-par convertible preference stock to 63 cents a share on 181,836 no-par common shares outstanding. This compares with $380,861 in first six months of 1929, equal after dividend requirements on 7 per cent cumulative preferred and $3.60 no-par convertible preference stocks to 95 cents a share on 120,000 shares of common then outstanding.

Mexican Payment Is Due This Month

Mexico City, Aug. 9—The first remittance of 10,000,000 pesos as advance payment agreed upon at New York conference on Mexican debt settlement will be made by Mexico this month, it is announced. Remittance is to be made from budget appropriation of $5,000,000 pesos set aside for payment of interior and exterior debt. The remaining 15,000,000 pesos, it is explained, will be used during the course of the present year for liquidation of the most urgent interior debt items.

Gen. Craig Gets San Francisco Post

Washington, Aug. 9—Maj. Gen. Malin Craig of Lowell, Mass., who has been commanding the Panama canal department is ordered to the command of the ninth corps area with headquarters at San Francisco. The appointment is effective Nov. 1.

Gen. Craig is to take the post Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur held before his appointment as chief of staff.

First National Stores' Sales Up

First National Stores, Inc., reports that sales for the four weeks ended July 26 amounted to $5,351,650, as compared with $3,941,121 for the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of 3.3 per cent.

For the 32 weeks ended July 26 sales totaled $63,198,084, compared with $53,635,340 for the same period of 1929, an increase of 19.3 per cent.

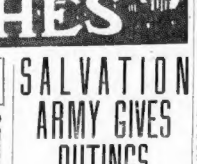
CHURCHES

Busy K. of C. Officials

THOMAS F. McGRATH
State Treasurer



JOSEPH M. KIRBY
State Deputy

Knights of Columbus will arrive in large numbers by auto, by train, and by aeroplane. Sessions will continue Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 19, 20, 21.

UNEMPLOYMENT CONSIDERED BY CHURCH

Recommendations sent out by the industrial relations committee of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches dealing with unemployment have been distributed broadly throughout the churches of Massachusetts. This committee headed by Mr. Fred L. Smith makes a number of points in its report, printed in an issue of "Facts and Factors" the following may be read:

"A manufacturing concern in Boston which had experienced for years a period of seasonal slackness in its business with its current period of unemployment, submitted the problem to its industrial engineer, who worked out a plan which solved the problem, securing steady work for all of its employees.

"What was possible for one large concern ought to be possible for industry at large when properly handled. Figures given of unemployment range in 4,000,000 who with members of their families constitute 15 per cent of the country's population. We can help to make the following suggestions to big business or to the industrial engineers.

"First—The formation of a reserve to be known as "unemployment insurance." To enable all concerns in good times to carry their employees during periods of slackness and so continuing the purchasing power of their employees.

"Second—The establishment by the United States Government of employment agencies or bureaus in all our large cities, thus keeping informed of employment conditions all over the country.

"Third—Inasmuch as improved machinery has caused a large increase of output of manufactured goods per worker, it is suggested that an eight-hour day and a five-day week be universal in industry. If such curtailment of working hours in normal production must be maintained to prevent accumulation and unemployment.

"Fourth—The country wide elimination of night work in industry.

"Fifth—A further check on child labor in all states North and South.

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Evening are occurring rapidly in the Commonwealth Pier congestion situation. The Maritime Association is the latest to line up in campaign to urge the State to keep this pier available for shipping interests.

This group has joined with the Boston Port Authority and the Foreign Commerce Club which have been aiding wool shippers in their protests. Mayor Curley is also on record against the encroachments.

The first result of the campaign was an announcement by Frank J. Lyman, commissioner of the public works department, that he agrees with the protesting parties. He concedes that the State has no moral right to interfere with Boston and Massachusetts shippers.

Lyman has desired to move his offices from Commonwealth Pier. He told the State budget commissioner of the protests, and the budget head has agreed to make recommendations in the 1931 budget for a new building for the department.

If the Legislature approves, this building will be started in 1931 and completed in 1932. Up it will be placed the public works, the engineers and the automobile registry, now occupying much of the portion of Commonwealth Pier.

TWO LINERS DUE

Two big liners are due at Commonwealth pier early today.

The Hamburg-American liner Cleveland reached the outer harbor tonight, but will dock at 8 a. m. The new White Star liner Britannic is due at the pier between 9 and 9:30 a. m. with 277 passengers for Boston.

Doubling for Love

north and south as if a brush, dipped in blue, had been dashed across the sky; thin streamers of rose lay against the cryptcrain.

Judy strained toward that magnificent pageant.

"Why," she whispered, "Why, you see it move—faster than the ship it goes—"

Before Judith' eyes the shimmering ball dropped back of the sea; now only a hemisphere—now a shallow slice of pink watermelon—now a tiny red bulb to hang on a horizon's edge—and now it was nothing, only a ghost of brightness which would vanish soon.

Judy quivered with the ecstasy of a supreme experience; she turned dreamily to the man beside her in a look that was both interested and gentle.

"You've lived that?" he asked softly. "They give you inspiration, such things? You feel this too?"

"Doesn't everyone? Oh—mafternoon, Mr. Millet, Makes it all feel all lifted up, caught above every little earthly thing." She laughed. "I'm glad you're here to see I'm small town and this is my first venture into the wide, wide world."

"But I like it. Miss Archer. Oh — don't look so startled—your name is on your chair. I'll even confide mine if it will help?" He chuckled, took a card from a leather case; she read, "Mr. Tristram Millet," engraved on the white square.

"Trist to my friends," he explained with a teasing grin. "Which could manage to say 'Tris,' Miss Archer?"

"Well —" Judy was a-tingle with delight.

"You'd like some Outlines of History, perhaps? Well, then I'm a friend. Oh, don't groan—I'll be nearly — thrown out of the best colleges—around the world as I've been traipsing through Canada—"

"Around the world?" she breathed. "You've been around the world?"

"Ah, that interests you! Don't tell me we're kindred souls always flying to the far places? I'm glad to be true —" He got up quickly, walked to the rail, lingered there in the gathering dusk.

Something wistful about him as he stood gazing out to sea; nonetheless, unapproachable, as he were lost in an aloneness so vast that never might he find the way another might any find the way in to him.

Slender long lines that made him look taller than he was and a way of moving with the lithe quickness of a cat. "Tired of things? Very likely," Judy went as she watched him. "He's seen too much—too much he'd like to forget — Goodness—Oh, probably never feels at ease — What does he know about Halifax? And she'll—Dad'll be beginning and end of that adventure. Only real one I'll ever have, so far."

He came back to her, bent down a little and his eyes flashed with a dark glow.

"Dance? Orchestra's just gone . . . I've a feeling you like to dance, Miss Archer?"

She got up at once, went loitering along the swaying deck with him, never aware of swapping her liks a warm garment.

"Friends have a name for me, too. Miss Tristram-Person. They call me Judy."

"May I? Really? Bewitching! Why Miss Judy? When all who run may read—"

"I'll tell you sometime," she chuckled and thought that she had happened to her tonight. Freedom—feather foam lightness—yet tonight she was the other Judy; tonight there was only blessed frivolity in all the world!

They were moving into the lounge when Kit Camp came down the companionway straight toward them. Judy flashed a merry hand—beckoned.
